CONFERENCE COLLAPSE CREATES CRISIS

Seamen Perish When Laurentic Collides With Napier Star

Sleeping Men Were Trapped in Their Bunks as Ships Came Together in Fog-shrouded Irish Sea

FIVE OF CREW WERE INJURED

Associated Press

Liverpool, Aug. 19.—Six seamen perished and five others were injured in a bow-to-bow collision of the Cunard White Star liner Laurentic and the blue star steamer Napier Star in the fog-shrouded Irish Sea yesterday.

The Laurentic carrying 620 disappointed passengers, and the Napier Star limped back to Liverpool in the tow of tugs, and docked safely yesterday afternoon. Both were damaged badly.

The ships collided in a dense fog, sixty miles out of Liverpool early this morning, a few hours after the Laurentic had embarked on a fortnight's cruise of northern capitals. The Napier Star, partly loaded with cargo, was en route from Glasgow to Liverpool to complete the loading.

They locked with a grinding smash that tore a long hole down the Laurentic's bow side, crushing seamen as they slept in their bunks.

None of her crew was injured. The bow of the Napier Star was smashed in for twenty feet and her forecastle housing was carried away. When she arrived in port her forward winches were hanging over the side.

The bunks of the Laurentic's crew could be seen through the gap in her side as she lay at her dock. It was in these bunks that the sleeping seamen were trapped.

The Laurentic's cruise was called off and the passengers were put on special trains for London. Neither ship sent out an SOS.

Timber Export Shows Recovery

B.C. July Shipments Up 4,000,000 Feet Over June, But Below Last Year

Overseas lumber exports from British Columbia in July showed a slight recovery over June, but were considerably less than in July of last year, which was particularly heavy, according to figures obtained by the forest branch of the Department of Lands.

Total shipments are shown as 54,562,936 board feet against 50,896,632 in June and 77,395,043 in July of 1934. Analysis of the chief markets gives a clear picture of the effect of trade developments during the year, especially in regard to the Oriental situation, where Japanese buying has ceased due to the new tariff embargo and Chinese purchasing has slumped.

In July of 1934 B.C. shipped 10,029,000 feet to Japan, while Puget Sound shipped 75,665 feet and the Columbia River 1,191,678 feet.

In July this year B.C. sent only 49,635 feet to Japan, while Puget Sound shipped 4,196,157 feet, Columbia River 3,997,430 and Grays Harbor 1,934,868.

China, which purchased 8,015,000 feet last July, took 3,545,880 feet this year. The United Kingdom, which took 45,614,000 feet last year, took 36,065,575 feet this July. The South African market took 3,217,000 feet against 4,782,381 last year, and Australia showed the only increase of any size, increasing its purchases from 7,005,000 feet to 7,911,000 feet.

Total exports of lumber for the seven months so far is 434,982,326 feet against 466,417,503 feet in the corresponding period of 1934.

CAPITAL HAS RELIEF PARADE

Canadian Press
Ottawa, Aug. 19.—Ontario's relief trekkers intend to stage a parade to-night in defiance of police orders, Ewart G. Humphries, trek leader, said to-day.

Delegations from the trekkers have been told the police would use every resource at their disposal to prevent a parade. Immediate objective of the men is transportation to their homes.

B.C. GETS OTTAWA LOAN FOR RELIEF

Canadian Press

Ottawa, Aug. 19.—A further relief loan of $435,000 for British Columbia has been granted by the Dominion treasury. It was learned to-day at the office of Finance Minister Rhodes. The loan, to enable the province to meet its share of relief costs, will be secured by a treasury bill bearing interest at 4 per cent payable half-yearly.

Pole Flight May Be Delayed

If Not Made This Week,
Soviet Effort Likely to Be Postponed

Canadian Press

Edmonton, Aug. 19.—If the proposed 6,000-mile non-stop flight by Soviet airmen from Moscow to San Francisco via the North Pole is not made this week, it probably will be postponed until next year, M. Sokoloff, Soviet trade official now at Akhivik, told a group of reporters here yesterday.

The Soviet airplane had been ready again for three days when it left Akhivik last Monday, but the flight was not made this week because of the weather over the whole length of the flight.

"When I left, Sokoloff estimated that if the flight was not made within ten days it would have to be postponed," he said.

"The weather has not been at all good lately in the north. We flew through several snow flurries the day we left Akhivik and it had been freezing at night."

The Soviet airmen planned to fly at a fairly high altitude and the danger of ice forming on the wings of the craft is increasing with the colder weather. Mr. Sullivan stated he was told by Sokoloff, vice-president of Amtorg Trading Company in New York, who is in charge of arrangements for the post-polar part of the flight.

U.S. LUMBER FREIGHTS CUT

Associated Press

Washington, Aug. 19.—The Interstate Commerce Commission to-day authorized freight reductions amounting to as much as 20 per cent on lumber from the Pacific coast to the east. The reductions are effective August 24.

The cuts apply from coastal points and inland mills near the coast to destinations east of the Illinois-Indiana state line.

Southern and southwestern lumber mills claimed the new rates would handicap their business in protesting the reductions.

Present rates range from seventy-nine to ninety cents per 100 pounds, the top applying to most points. The new rate to most points will be seventy-two cents per 100 pounds.

Gasoline Shortage Within Five Years

Engineers, Predicting Higher Prices For Petroleum Products

Associated Press

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—A serious shortage of petroleum and its principal derivative, gasoline, in the United States within the next five to eight years was predicted to-day by experts in a report prepared for presentation to the American Chemical Society.

The shortage, it was declared by Dr. Benjamin T. Brooks, consulting chemical engineer of New York, and L. C. Snider, geologist of Henry L. Doherty and Company, will bring higher prices and an increase in petroleum imports from other countries.

They added, however, that "the shortage will be experienced many years before the United States supply is exhausted."

Seriously Damaged in Collision Yesterday

Ss. Laurentic of the Cunard White Star Line was towed back to Liverpool yesterday afternoon after she had been seriously damaged in collision with the blue star Ss. Napier Star. The collision occurred in a dense fog in the Irish Sea. Six of the Laurentic's seamen were killed as they slept in their bunks, and five were seriously injured.

Improvements on Island
Highway

A complete survey of the Island Highway showing contemplated relocations of the road and diversions has been completed, Hon. F. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works, announced to-day.

This has been done, he said, as part of the government's highway improvement programme and paves the way for development work on the road as funds are available.

Straightening of the highway at numerous points is proposed by the survey, so that when it is eventually completed the road will meet fully the demands of modern automobile travel.

Mr. MacPherson said he anticipated in next year's work further attention could be paid to the Malahat where widening and relocations are proposed.

DEATH TAKES TOLL IN EAST

Death stalked Eastern Canada's roads and waterways from Prince Edward Island to Northwestern Ontario during one of the hottest week-ends of the summer and took a toll of forty-five lives, thirty-one of them by drowning.

Every eastern province figured in the tabulation of the tragic results accompanying efforts of sweltering easterners to escape blistering heat. The west reported one fatality in Winnipeg. Ontario led with twenty. There were thirteen lives lost in the Maritimes, twelve in Quebec.

Multiple drownings occurred in all but Prince Edward Island. Three men at Prince Edward Island. Three men at Prince Edward Island.

Grave Europe Situation Is Developed By Italy's Belligerent Attitude

BIG MUNITIONS ORDER PLACED

Canadian Press

Addis Ababa, Aug. 19.—Emperor Haile Selassie was reported to-day to have placed a large war munitions order with the Colt Patent Fire Arms Company of the United States.

The emperor himself did not comment on the report. The quarters in which the report was heard said they believed the placing of such an order followed Ethiopia's failure to receive various orders of munitions from certain European countries which have placed embargoes on shipments of arms.

The emperor summoned the directors of the Ethiopian National Bank, under his chairmanship, into extraordinary session this afternoon, and it was presumed the meeting was to allocate funds for the purchase of munitions.

Meanwhile, it was understood considerable quantities of arms and ammunition were entering Ethiopia through the Sudan, but that these quantities were far short of what was necessary.

Statesmen Meet in London to Review Developments Following Flat Refusal of Mussolini to Consider Peace Proposals at Paris; Policy of Britain at Geneva Council Meeting to Be Defined

CABINET COUNCIL WILL BE CALLED

Sir Samuel Hoare, British Foreign Secretary, and Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, will confer in London to-night on the grave situation resulting from the collapse of the three-power conference in Paris on Ethiopia.

A meeting of the British Cabinet is expected within a few days, to define Britain's stand before the crucial meeting of the League of Nations Council September 4 when the whole issue comes up for review.

The British press took the gravest view of the latest developments. It was declared that Italy had flatly rejected Anglo-French efforts at a peaceful solution of the problem, and it was seen as a strong possibility that Italy would leave the league should the latter adopt a vigorous tone.

The only consolation in the troubled middle was word from a French spokesman in Paris, that France stands solidly with Great Britain.

Canadian Press from Havas
London, Aug. 19.—Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare and Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, were to confer here to-night on the crisis created by Italy's flat refusal to consider Anglo-French proposals for peaceful settlement of its threat of war on Ethiopia.

Sir Samuel, rushing back to London from a vacation in Norfolk, and Mr. Eden, returning to-day from the Tripartite Conference in Paris, will have to consider the questions of an arms embargo on Italy and Ethiopia, of protection for the British legation in Addis Ababa in case of hostilities and of the military defence needs of Britain's African colonies—Kenya and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan in particular—in case of war.

Two more serious questions to be considered soon are the future course of Anglo-Italian relations and the Calgary, Aug. 19.—W. R. Howson, K.C., leader of the Alberta Liberal Party, said in an interview here that if a Liberal government was elected at the August 22 elections it would act quickly to restore "the heritage of the people—a free and untrammelled press."

Referring to amendments to the slander and libel act passed at the last session of the provincial legislature by the United Farmers of Alberta government, Mr. Howson stated: "Nowhere in this world, save in certain European countries, where the iron hand of dictatorship rules, has such drastic and unwarranted action been recorded as that represented in Alberta's recent amendments to the slander and libel act."

Commodity Exchange Markets Suppressed

Belief Exists in Rome, Mussolini Plans Early Military Action Against Ethiopia

Associated Press

Rome, Aug. 19.—With Italian military action in Ethiopia believed impending, the official gazette to-day announced suppression of commodity exchange markets in ten cities.

The belief the Fascist army would attack Emperor Haile Selassie's troops in the near future gained momentum hourly as the Italian public read of the suspension of the tri-power conference in Paris.

The gazette announced a royal decree suppressed the commodity exchanges of Bologna, Florence, Rome, Genoa, Milan, Naples, Padua, Turin, Trieste and Venice.

The decree said the action was taken because the exchanges "no longer responded to the needs of the market."

Island Mine Prospects Good

Minister Finds Much Interest in West Coast Developments

Prospects appear good for the development of several small mines on the West Coast of Vancouver Island, Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Mines, said to-day on his return from a week's trip up the coast.

In the Zebulon River and Herbert Arm sections capital is going in, and there is considerable activity, the minister said. Much interest centres around prospects there.

Mr. Pearson, who is also Commissioner of Fisheries for the province, was accompanied by George J. Alexander, the deputy. They visited the fishing grounds, but found things fairly quiet. The weather hit pilchard catches last week, but the men were hoping for improvement.

The salmon catch, generally speaking, has not been good and the earnings may be less than average, he said.

The hangar was completely surrounded by state patrolmen, city police and marine corps reservists. A crowd of people, some of whom had remained at the airport all night, were at the field, their numbers had increased during the morning.

Vancouver, Aug. 19.—The bodies of Will Rogers and Wiley Post, who started on the last lap of the long return flight to their native land at 8:22 a.m. to-day when Pilot Joe Crosson hopped off for Seattle from the Sea Island airport here at 8:23 a.m. P.S.T.

The Alaskan pilot, performing a last service for his two friends, the great humorist and the daring round-the-world flier, ordered the plane bearing the bodies wheeled out of the hangar at 8:05 a.m.

After a brief ceremony, in which Alderman Harry de Graves placed a wreath in the plane on behalf of the City of Vancouver, the motor was turned over, warmed up, and the big silver Lockheed Electra ship soared into the air.

Representatives of the Dominion and British Columbia governments, John K. Davis, American Consul in Vancouver; the city of Vancouver, the Royal Canadian Air Force, civilian airmen and public sympathizers paid tribute to the famous American comedian and his equally famous aviator companion in death in a brief ceremony before the silver twin-motored cabin plane taxied down the field.

In the absence of Mayor G. G. McGeer, Alderman Tom Wilkinson represented the city.

"On behalf of his worship the mayor, the city council and citizens of Vancouver we pay tribute to your illustrious dead," Alderman Wilkinson said just before the wreaths were placed on the coffin in the plane.

"Canada to-day mourns with you the greatest loss your nation has suffered."

A. E. Munn, member for North Vancouver in the last Parliament, extended sympathy on behalf of Premier Bennett and the Dominion government, and Stanley McKeen, member of the Provincial Legislature, represented Premier Pattullo and the British Columbia government.

Other representatives present included Aldermen de Graves and G. C. Miller, Squadron Leader A. B. Shearer.

Sentence Held Over For Week

Adjournment Is Allowed in Labatt Kidnapping Case at London

Canadian Press
London, Ont., Aug. 19.—New information he said he received "just a few minutes before court opened," forced Crown Attorney Norman F. Newton to request another week's adjournment for three men charged in connection with the kidnapping of John Labatt, when the trio, Michael McCardell, Jack Bannan and Gerald Nicholson, appeared in county police court to-day.

McCardell, a native Canadian, pleaded guilty two weeks ago to a charge of "abducting the wealthy London brewer last year, and was to have been sentenced to-day.

A few minutes before court opening, McCardell, nursing a broken arm, left the court room with the crown attorney and was in conference for some time behind closed doors. The adjournment was granted at Mr. Newton's request upon his return from the ante-chamber.

He made no suggestion as to the nature of his information and merely asked that Bannan, also charged with the kidnapping, and Nicholson, charged with being an accessory after the fact, be remanded for a week along with McCardell.

attitude to be taken by Britain at the forthcoming meeting in Geneva of the League of Nations Council. Britain's attitude at Geneva still has not been defined, official circles holding themselves to the statement that the government cannot fix its policy without knowing fully the position of France.

Informed quarters stated Anglo-Italian "understandings" regarding British rights to Lake Tana, the source of the Blue Nile, had been knocked sky high by the tri-power conference in Paris.

An authority said the response of Italy in Paris indicated that nation considered herself no longer bound by the 1923 bilateral agreement with Great Britain or by other understandings of an informal character.

U.S. SUPPORT
The British government has by implication made a bid for the moral support of the United States in its future steps in the Italo-Ethiopian situation, it was learned to-day. While Mr. Eden, in Paris, was seeing J. Theodore Morrison, counselor to the United States embassy, the Foreign Office here advised Ray Atherton, American Charge d'Affaires here, of the trend of events.

DIPLOMACY FAILS
Paris, Aug. 19. (Associated Press).—Another diplomatic effort to prevent the impending war between Italy and Ethiopia was ended to-day. Baron Pometio Alotai of Italy, who conveyed Premier Mussolini's "no" to French and British peace proposals, told Premier Pierre Laval "au revoir" and prepared to go back to Rome.

Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations Affairs, told the French government head the same and readied himself for his return trip to London.

A high French official said privately Europe "faces a crisis like that of 1914" and "France must resign herself to losing Italy's friendship."

A member of the Italian delegation blamed the breakdown of the conference on "the lack of English goodwill and their unending position."

A British spokesman commented: "Nothing can be done at Geneva to prevent war." The same source said Premier Laval had assured Eden France was with Britain in this critical moment.

The Italian denied a report the conference had heard only Franco-British proposals and Mussolini's refusal to accept them. "The Italians also made suggestions which were turned down in turn by the French and British," he said.

An Italian delegate gave little hope Geneva would succeed where the tri-power conference had failed.

Europe "faces a crisis like that of 1914," a high French official said privately. The tri-power Stress front—Great Britain, Italy and France—was broken, he sadly admitted, and France must resign herself to losing Italy's friendship.

Italy's apparent determination to conquer Ethiopia was described by one governmental authority as a "test for the League. The League must triumph or there will be chaos."

He recalled the "whole world went to war because Austria proposed to do to Serbia a good deal less than Mussolini intends doing to Ethiopia."

Italy's disregard for its League obligations, officials said, if continued will mean "there is nothing to hold anyone."

France "has constantly asserted heretofore it needed Italy and would do nothing to alienate that nation, but to-day, after the collapse of the tri-power peace efforts, officials said, 'France is solidly with England.'"

Asked if the Italians expected a "long struggle," Baron Alotai said: "We have studied the question and are perfectly assured. We have plenty of men and plenty of money. Diplomatic channels have little chance to settle our affairs with Ethiopia."

As for the League covenant's clause safeguarding the independence and integrity of member nations, the Italian diplomat remarked: "The League engaged itself to do a lot of things it has not done."

The Italian diplomat said the total disarmament of Ethiopia was the main demand of his nation.

"The essential basis of Italian security is the total disarmament of Ethiopia under Italian control. Our principal goal is security. To play our role in Europe, we must have security in our colonies if we are to maintain the Stress front (of Italy, France and Great Britain).

"War in Africa cannot in any way influence our Austrian policy, which will maintain unchanged."

Associated Press
Paris, Aug. 19.—Baron Pometio Alotai of Italy declared to-night: "I see no basis for further discussion (of the Ethiopian situation) and I have no hopes for Geneva. Italy does not want to leave Geneva, but if we are led to the door we will have to leave."

RACIAL RELATIONS
Associated Press
Capetown, South Africa, Aug. 19.—Col. D. Reitz, Minister of Agriculture for the Union of South Africa, to-day predicted war between Italy and Ethiopia would "upset the relations between black and white people throughout the world."

"This unjustified aggression by the white man against the black," he continued, "must leave its mark. Mussolini cannot refrain his steps. He is bound to go ahead and probably will take Addis Ababa."

"But after that his real problems will begin," concluded the minister, just back from London.

London, Aug. 19. (Canadian Press Cable).—An affair of "nothing," remarked Rt. Hon. Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, as he arrived at Crofton to-night from the abortive tri-power parley in Paris.

"We must go on," he added, "considering what has happened, I shall report immediately to the Foreign Secretary."

Forecasted Appointment to Australia Confirmed To-day in London

Canadian Press
London, Aug. 19.—Sir Alexander Hore-Ruthven, as forecast, to-day was appointed Governor-General of Australia.

He succeeds the first native-born Governor-General of the Commonwealth, Sir Isaac Isaacs, whose term expires early next year.

Sir Alexander has had much experience in Australia, where he first went as military aide to the Governor-General in 1908. He served throughout the Great War in France and Gallipoli, was severely wounded, was mentioned in dispatches five times, awarded the D.S.O. and bar, and made Commander of the Bath and of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

From 1928 to 1934 he was governor of the state of South Australia; since then he has been governor of New South Wales.

The 19,000-ton Laurentic, carrying 600 passengers, had left Liverpool for a fortnight's cruise in northern waters. Groping her way through the fog in the early morning, she smashed into the inward-bound Napier Star, a 10,000-ton steamer plying between Liverpool and Auckland.

Getting a line aboard the Napier Star, the Laurentic towed her back to port, but later handed her charge over to tugs.

DOCKED AT LIVERPOOL
Liverpool, Aug. 19. (Associated Press).—Two British liners, the Laurentic and the Napier Star, were docked safely at Liverpool to-day following a crash in the Irish Channel which cost the lives of six seamen.

The Laurentic's 620 passengers, whose scheduled fortnight's cruise of northern capitals was ended abruptly early Sunday morning, sixty miles out of Liverpool, returned to London.

The seamen who perished in the bow-to-bow collision of the two ships, as well as five others who were injured, as they were sleeping in their bunks, sustained scarcely twenty feet from the Laurentic's first-class quarters.

Hint Sabotage In Plane Crash

Pension Plan Author in Air Wreck at Pittsburgh, Cal.

Pittsburgh, Cal., Aug. 19.—Possibility of sabotage in the crash here yesterday of an airplane bearing Dr. F. E. Townsend, pension plan author, was seen to-day in a report to Sheriff John A. Miller.

C. A. Hicks, president of the local Townsend Club, to-day told Sheriff Miller, a "Mrs. Baker," president of an Oakland branch unit of the organization, informed him she saw a strange man enter the cabin of the plane while Dr. Townsend was speaking. The man, Mrs. Baker said, left hurriedly and fled in a waiting automobile.

The department of commerce removed the wreckage to Oakland to-day for inspection. Sheriff Miller announced he would conduct a separate investigation.

The plane, with Pilot Hulbert Hindel at the controls and with Dr. Townsend and Edward J. Margel of San Francisco, state manager of the Townsend club, in the cabin, veered suddenly as it went down the runway and smashed into a row of trees and a fence. None of the men were hurt.

Dr. Townsend, who had just finished addressing several thousand northern California supporters of his old age pension plan, immediately chartered a plane and flew to Oakland, where he made connections with a passenger plane bound for Los Angeles. He had a speaking engagement in the south to fulfill later in the day.

London, Aug. 19.—One of the strangest and most touching services ever held under the mighty dome of St. Paul's Cathedral yesterday saw 700 deaf and dumb persons from fourteen nations pray and sing without a sound being heard.

Walpi, Ariz., Aug. 19.—Fleet-footed runners scurried to the far reaches of Hopland to-day in search of snakes to be used in the weird thousand-year-old Hopi prayer for rain.

Hundreds of reptiles, including deadly rattlers, will be captured during the next four days, then washed and sprinkled with sacred meal to make them worthy messengers from the Hopi to the gods of the underworld that rain is needed to save the parched crops on the reservations.

When the last of the grotesque dances is held next Sunday, the snakes will be liberated to take to the underworld rulers the Hopi chant:

"We want storms and rains from every direction so our springs may be filled and the life-giving corn may grow so we will have food for our children. Then when our children have eaten may there be food for all."

The runners were equipped with bags in which the snakes will be brought to the Kivas, and with whips of eagle feather, which are used to keep the reptiles from coiling and striking.

Already the snake priests have retired to the underground recesses of the kivas to begin the ritual which no white man has ever witnessed. They will fast until the nine-day rites have ended.

Hint Sabotage In Plane Crash

Pension Plan Author in Air Wreck at Pittsburgh, Cal.

Pittsburgh, Cal., Aug. 19.—Possibility of sabotage in the crash here yesterday of an airplane bearing Dr. F. E. Townsend, pension plan author, was seen to-day in a report to Sheriff John A. Miller.

C. A. Hicks, president of the local Townsend Club, to-day told Sheriff Miller, a "Mrs. Baker," president of an Oakland branch unit of the organization, informed him she saw a strange man enter the cabin of the plane while Dr. Townsend was speaking. The man, Mrs. Baker said, left hurriedly and fled in a waiting automobile.

The department of commerce removed the wreckage to Oakland to-day for inspection. Sheriff Miller announced he would conduct a separate investigation.

The plane, with Pilot Hulbert Hindel at the controls and with Dr. Townsend and Edward J. Margel of San Francisco, state manager of the Townsend club, in the cabin, veered suddenly as it went down the runway and smashed into a row of trees and a fence. None of the men were hurt.

Dr. Townsend, who had just finished addressing several thousand northern California supporters of his old age pension plan, immediately chartered a plane and flew to Oakland, where he made connections with a passenger plane bound for Los Angeles. He had a speaking engagement in the south to fulfill later in the day.

who could not swim, lost their lives at Rice Lake, north of Port Hope, Ont. Three more drowned in four and one-half feet of water in Joliffe Bay, Lake Champlain, Quebec, and two girls were drowned at Wedgeport, N.S., trying to save a younger companion.

Five children were burned to death near Edmundston, N.B., when their farm home was consumed by flames. A level crossing accident near London, Ont., brought death to a man and his wife. Trains killed two men in Ontario and shooting accidents in Quebec and Ontario took another two lives.

Eight drowned in the Maritimes, ten in Quebec and thirteen in Ontario.

A triple tragedy occurred at Cochester Beach, near Windsor, Ont., Sunday when three young persons lost their lives when their rowboat capsized.

Edmundston, N.B., Aug. 19.—Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Moreau were burned to death early yesterday in their farm home at Moreauville settlement in the parish of Baker Brook, nine miles from here. Five other occupants escaped.

The dead were three boys, Yvonne, four; Germain, six; and Evon, ten, and two girls, Cecile, seven, and Bernadette, nine.

Bewdley, Ont., Aug. 19.—Calm was restored in the environs of Rice Lake, near this village, ten miles north of Port Hope, to-day after a week-end of hysteria in which three men, including a Toronto policeman, drowned.

Bodies of the three were recovered yesterday after Saturday night's threefold tragedy, and were turned to their homes to-day.

The dead: Alex Sinclair, twenty-nine, Toronto police constable; John Sinclair, thirty-one, his brother, of Oshawa, and Samuel Hoult, Toronto city employee.

Recovery, But Not Prosperity

Factors in British Trade Recovery Dealt With in Washington Report

Canadian Press
Washington, Aug. 19.—A balanced budget, a protective tariff, a depreciated currency and cheap money have helped to bring a "substantial measure of recovery," but not prosperity, to Great Britain in the last two years, according to a study released to-day by the Foreign Policy Association.

The conclusion was based on two reports on studies of policies of Great Britain and the results so far attained, prepared by William Koren of the association's research staff.

"The index of industrial production based on 1924 rose from 53.3 per cent in 1929 to 110.5 per cent in 1934, a figure only 1.3 points below the index for 1929," Mr. Koren reported. "Foreign-trade figures have also tended upward since the low point of the industrial depression in the summer of 1932."

"Industrial workers have shared in Britain's recovery during the national government's tenure of office. Registered unemployment in the United Kingdom has fallen from the peak figure of 2,979,425 in January, 1933, to 2,068,152 in June, 1935, and the number of employed insured workers in Great Britain has increased from 9.33 million in September, 1931, to 10.28 million."

In two respects, the report said, the policies of the national government had conspicuously failed. The efforts of Major Walter Elliott, Minister for Agriculture, to aid farmers by subsidies and marketing schemes, implemented by restriction of food imports, were "described as 'having hardly proved beneficial. More important, it was found, the government had done little to revive foreign trade or to relieve the 'depressed areas' where Britain's export industries were concentrated."

MOSCOW TO GROW
FRUIT ON STREETS

Moscow, Aug. 19.—Apple and other fruit trees will be planted in Moscow streets instead of the usual shade variety.

State farms to-day were ordered to cultivate "14,000 fruit trees to be planted here, beginning in 1935."

Cargo in Truck
Dumped on Dock

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—Police answered a riot call at the waterfront here early to-day after five marauders dumped cargo from a truck in front of the strike-bound River Lines dock.

The troublemakers had tied before police arrived. Lifting of police vigilance in escorting trucks from interior points to the dock was blamed for the incident.

SIR JOHN ROSS DIES IN IRELAND

Canadian Press Cable

Six Mile Cross, County Tyrone, Ireland, Aug. 19.—Sir John Ross, Lord Chancellor of Ireland in 1921-22, died here yesterday. He was seventy-nine years old.

A noted student, Sir John was the first classical scholar at Trinity College, Dublin, in 1876. He was admitted to the bar in 1879 and sat in the High Court of Justice in Ireland, Chancery Division, from 1896 to 1921.

He was Conservative member of Parliament for Londonderry City from 1892 to 1895 and became commissioner of national education in Ireland in 1905.

Gives Advice To Tarzans

Knitting Would Have Helped Tacoma's Wild Men, Says Crisler

Associated Press

Seattle, Aug. 19.—If Tacoma's two "wild men" who came out of the woods of the Olympic Peninsula last week after several days of attempting to win a $200 bet with a "back-to-nature" feat had been trained for their ordeal by knitting they might have succeeded.

This is the opinion of Herbert B. Crisler, who is going to enter the Olympic "wilds" next week wearing shorts he knitted himself.

"Those fellows from Tacoma did not realize you have got to knit to soothe your nerves before setting out on a jaunt like that," Crisler said, while doing intricate things with a "popcorn stitch."

Crisler, a commercial photographer and his partner, Loren Smith, twenty, former high school athlete, will go forth armed only with cameras to take pictures of bear, elk, deer and cougar.

Smith does not knit.

Crisler learned to knit six months ago and has completed a skirt, and now is making a blue-grey coat for a friend.

He went into the Olympics for a month four years ago, going for days without seeing a man-made trail. This time he will wear trunks, his own knitting kind, and trunks only.

The pair plan to go into the "wilds" near the Olympic Hot Springs, and to the head of the Hoh River and skip around Mount Olympus. They will carry no compass, Crisler declaring he can travel by instinct.

They will carry sleeping bags, made of light wool comforters, raisins, sugar, rice and matches and a little skin lotion.

Anxiety Rules Ex-kings Awaiting Call to Thrones

Ex-King George of Greece... his supporters are in power.

Prince William of Wied... Albania never loved him.

London, Aug. 19.—Anxious-benchers: George of Greece and William of Wied.

Reasons: Hoping of getting back on Balkan thrones.

Chances: Fifty-fifty for George, not that good for William.

Ex-King George is largely a Dane by blood, being sprig of that royal house of Denmark whose George First was chosen King of Greece in 1863. His luck has mainly been the portion of this adopted royalty.

The first George was assassinated at Salonika in 1913. His son, Constantine, was dethroned during the World War, forced to live in exile, then called back to the throne, then once more compelled to abdicate. The present and second George of Greece had to leave the country when the mercurial Greeks decided to have a republic, at the same time officially deposing and banishing him in 1924.

GEORGE'S SUPPORTERS RULE

Since then he has been one of that strange little army of the unemployed, uneasy ghosts of their former selves—the rulers who no longer rule. George, still good-looking and very much alive at forty-five, often spends part of his year in England, where some of the nice, well-behaved papers, which "mind their manners," always refer to him as "King George." They never, never put that odious "ex" before the title. They thus help George to dream of what may be. For a long time his dreams seemed futile. But his fortunes are looking up now.

Venizelos—greater enemy of his house—by supporting the recent rebellion of republicans against the semi-democratic government of Premier Tsaldaris, has paved the way for George. The republican revolt was crushed, some of its leaders evacuated, many others sent to prison and still others, including Venizelos, went into exile. The only seeming barrier to George's return to the throne is the fact that he is not a native-born Greek.

An English license is "game" no matter how many points your opponents may have.

MUTILATED BY DOGS

Hanley, Staffordshire, England, Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—A pack of six Great Danes with a reputation for gentleness with children, suddenly caught three-year-old George William Smith alone yesterday and attacked and mutilated him fatally. The pack was owned by John Reilly, widely known breeder of Great Danes.

FIND WHERE ROCKIES END

Geologists Make Survey of Northern British Columbia and Alberta By Airplane

Written for The Canadian Press By DR. CHARLES CAMSELL

Edmonton, Aug. 19.—The aerial flight of some 4,000 miles which began at Prince Rupert, B.C., and ended at Edmonton, was undertaken for the purpose of inspecting the work of several geological parties working in the north arm of Great Slave Lake and Beaver Lodge, Athabasca Lake.

In addition observations and investigations were made into a number of questions concerning the administration of the Northwest Territories on behalf of the council of the Northwest Territories, of which I have been a member for fifteen years.

The third subject of inquiry was to determine what happens to the Rocky Mountains in latitude 60 degrees where the Liard River cuts across them. These ranges, which run up through the United States and Canada, seem to die down when they strike the Liard River, and it has always been a question with geographers whether or not they continue north of that river and merge with the Mackenzie Mountains, or whether the Mackenzie Mountains are a separate range isolated from the Rockies.

The party consisted of C. H. Dickins, pilot; W. Sunderland, photographer and mechanic; A. D. Maclean, Superintendent of the Civil Aviation Branch of the National Defence Department, and myself. The plane, a Fairchild 71, was provided by Canadian Airways, and equipped with a radio set and a first class aerial camera.

Our observations and airplane photographs will show that the Rockies, which run as a continuous group of ranges from the southern United States through Alberta and British Columbia, die down along the strike into the plateau country north of Liard River, where for many miles to the north-northwestward few of the rounded summits extend above the timber line. However, two degrees to the northeast, and across a relatively low country, the Mackenzie Mountains spring up as if off to extend northward a gradually broadening belt of mountains which also curves westward to cut off the plateau country on the north.

For many years the idea of tropical valleys on the Liard River country has mutilated the imagination of newspaper writers, and it is unfortunate that one has to explode those ideas. The tropical valley on the Liard River is associated with the name of Tom Smith, a Yukon trapper and his daughter Jane, who lived for some years at some hot springs near the Devil's Gate.

With two years' catch of furs, Tom Smith left his cabin at the hot springs in a boat to trade his furs at Port Liard. He portaged over the Devil's Portage, ran the Rapids of the Drowned and successfully passed through Hell's Gate. In fact all the dangerous water on the Liard River was behind him when his boat was swamped in a whirlpool.

His outfit was lost and he himself was drowned.

His daughter got ashore and by some means found her way to Port Liard, 100 miles or more away. She died only last year at Hot River and could never be induced to tell much of her experiences.

Czechoslovakia Protects Birds

Kingsville, Ont., Aug. 19.—Plans for the establishment of bird sanctuaries in Czechoslovakia are being pressed according to word received by Jack Miner, Canadian naturalist, from Joseph Srb of the department of finance of the European country.

The work being done by Mr. Miner at his western Ontario sanctuary was dealt with in an article published recently in a Czechoslovak magazine.

CONSERVATION IS NECESSARY

Vast Areas in U.S. May Become Desert, Says Dr. A. E. Douglass

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH Associated Press Writer

Washington, Aug. 19.—Drought was blamed to-day for the decline and fall of an ancient American nation.

A determination of Dr. A. E. Douglass of Stewart Observatory at the University of Arizona of weather prevailing centuries ago was made to-day by the National Geographic Society. It recalled a recent prophecy by Rexford G. Tugwell, under-secretary of agriculture, that vast areas of the United States great plains might become a desert unless proper conservation is called out in the area.

Such evidently was the case six centuries ago, causing the abandonment of a settlement of forty villages in the Chaco Canyon region of New Mexico, the largest of which was Pueblo Bonita, a building of 1,000 rooms.

To-day, the society says, the area is a semi-arid, treeless waste in which agriculture is almost impossible. About 700 years ago and earlier, however, a fine forest flourished there and the soil produced sufficient crops to support a large population.

Evidence of these facts was found by Dr. Douglass in a lengthy study of tree rings. The most ancient records were obtained from old logs used in the construction of the Pueblos.

Dr. Douglass determined wet and dry weather occurs in cycles, with a major drought occurring once every 300 years and minor droughts happening in the intervals.

GERMANY GAVE WILLIAM THRONE

It's different with William of Wied. After the Balkan wars when Serbia, Greece and Bulgaria had knocked the stuffing out of Turkey and taken away Albania, German influence plumped for Prince William of Wied as Albanian king, and William it was.

William landed in his new domain early in 1914. The World War broke out and the wild Albanians sent him packing in September, 1914. But William took the precaution not to abdicate. Instead, he promised his unloving subjects he would come back any time they wanted him to. Up to now they have not expressed any great yearning to that effect. William is getting on in years. He is fifty-nine, but would like to get back that misty throne so he could bequeath it to his son, Carol Victor, who is a perfectly good German, studying law at the University of Tuebingen.

BIG REVENUE FROM LIQUOR

Taxation Will Put $145,000,000 Into U.S. State Treasuries This Year

Chicago, Aug. 19.—The national thirst will put nearly $145,000,000 into state treasuries this year, a survey on state liquor taxation made for the American Legislators' Association shows.

The report included actual or estimated revenues of $92,230,000 in twenty-four of the thirty-two states which license beer and liquor dispensaries, and $51,798,000 revenue in ten of the fourteen states operating liquor stores.

Wide variation in "expectation" from liquor taxes was shown among the states.

New York state received $14,490,000 from excise and license taxes in 1934-1935, a per capita revenue of $3.20. California anticipated an annual revenue of $3,300,000 or $4 cents per capita.

Ohio topped the list of expected annual revenue among states operating liquor stores, with an expectation of $15,196,000 or $2.38 per capita. Pennsylvania anticipated a revenue of $15,000,000 or $1.53 per capita, and Michigan anticipated $7,579,000, or $1.50 per capita.

The report pointed out that Alabama was the only state in which it was impossible to buy a legal drink since the first of the year.

PEDDLERS AROUSED

Toronto, Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—Toronto peddlers are up in arms. The object of the attack is the Humane Society, which the peddlers claim, unfairly condemned some of their horses. Headed by H. Puterman, president, more than 400 peddlers met here last night to protest against recent actions of inspectors of the society who ordered shooting of many of the peddlers' horses because of old age and sickness.

YOUNG PILOT

London, Ont., Aug. 19.—Fourteen-year-old F. Vines, student pilot of the London Flying Club, made his first solo flight at the airport Saturday. The youngster's feat is believed unique in Canadian aviation annals, and although it will be three years before he can be granted a pilot's license, he has proven capable of handling an airplane.

Patou Discusses New Styles As Blouse Vogue Gains

With a black afternoon ensemble of embossed velvet, Patou shows a blouse of ruby red chiffon velvet featuring the new drape neckline. It is severely plain otherwise, the sleeves following the lines of the jacket.

By JEAN PATOU PARIS

I ALWAYS deplored the somewhat lengthy sleeves of the blouse from the most feminine, and at the same time, the most effective item of woman's dress. Its return to popularity was therefore a source of great satisfaction, and explains the very extensive range of blouse styles in my winter collection.

Drift recently, blouses were worn only at certain hours of the day, usually with the informal suit and occasionally with the afternoon suit or ensemble, but seldom for tea or dinner.

BLOUSES PREDOMINATE

This season's collections are literally swamped with blouses. There are blouses not only for every hour of the day, but for every function, except, of course, in the most formal evening dress. They vary from the tailored shirtwaist to the ultra-feminine and luxurious model which complements the late afternoon and dinner ensemble.

Cut and fabric are important factors. The simple sports model is more just as studied as the more elaborate example. The novelty of the moment is the high shirt collar for informal wear, complete with tie or bowtie, providing a contrast to the collarless jacket. Dress blouses have subtly draped necklines, striking a new note after so many seasons of bare necks and décolletés. The new choker collars are very remote, however, from the stiff, whale-boned affairs of yesterday. They are supple and youthful affairs from which the wearer's head seems to emerge like a flower.

SWEATERS SUPPLEMENTED

The new shirt blouses have somewhat supplanted the sweater. They are smarter, less informal and yet sufficiently practical to complement the easy-fitting sports and informal clothes the modern woman likes. Their slightly masculine cut and aspect is another feature which women seem to have adopted this season in all their practical wear.

Hand knitted sweaters or blouses are marvels of subtle cut and fitting these days, and are subject to a somewhat sobering influence in so far as the coloring goes. Vari-colored effects are finished. One or two colors only spell smartness. Shier wools and flannels and silk pique are among the newer mediums.

All the fantasy of the mode seems to be centred in the dress blouse. Often draped high across the throat in front, the back may reveal a slashed décolleté, more pronounced as the model acquires a more luxurious note. Satin, velvet, paillette embroidered crepes and lame fashion the end-of-the-day blouses. Never still are the blouses of sombre colored chiffon with their transparent effects which usually veil a very generous décolleté.

You will often find the entire note of fantasy of the ensemble in the blouse.

ITALY AND ETHIOPIA

AS THIS IS WRITTEN THE NEWS about the Italo-Ethiopian squabble is very conflicting. Mussolini seems determined to go to war. He is deaf and dumb to reason. On the other hand, Emperor Haile Selassie of Abyssinia is reported to-day to have offered indirectly to make large concessions to Italy to prevent war between the two countries. Information from usually reliable sources suggests that he is ready to cede large parts of his territory lying both along the borders of upper Eritrea and Italian Somaliland and to make broad economic concessions as well.

It would appear from this information that the ruler of Ethiopia is genuinely desirous of saving his people from the ravages of war—not war as it was when King Menelik's soldiers defeated the Italians at the battle of Adua (or Adowa) in 1896—but war of the most brutal kind ever conceived by man, war of poison gas, diabolical contrivances dropped from the air on combatants and non-combatants alike, war which will wipe out whole cities and their inhabitants in a few hours. This is the kind of war which Mussolini is planning in this year of grace, 1935, upon a member state of the League of Nations, a state which was welcomed to the League by an Italian statesman with the profound announcement that Ethiopia's membership would add prestige to this great organization for peace among the nations of the world.

It is fitting at this time to hark back to the battle of Adua. The Italians lost more than 4,500 white and 2,000 native troops killed and wounded, and more than 2,500 prisoners, of which 1,600 were white, while the Abyssinians admitted a loss of 3,000. It is a matter of record, however, that the white prisoners, taken by King Menelik were exceedingly well treated by him, and that he behaved throughout the struggle with Italy with the greatest humanity and dignity.

If Mussolini shall continue his present attitude, will he conduct a war with a fellow member state of the League of Nations with "the greatest humanity and dignity?" If war there shall be, the course of events will supply the answer. Students of history will recall the policies of Mussolini more than a decade ago—the Matteotti affair, and many others which painted the world ruthless on the brow of Il Duce. Italy may smother Ethiopia with a 1935 blanket of a Fascist pattern. But if she does, the name of Italy will be mud, if the colloquialism may be permitted, in the minds of the nations of the rest of the world.

Mr. Lloyd George goes right to the point when he says that if the League of Nations fails to compose the Ethiopian trouble it will be a hopeless paralytic. "The shock," he goes on to say, "of Japan's blunt refusal to desist from its rapacious in the East resulted in a stroke to its prestige which palsied its right arm. If it fails to save the integrity and independence of Ethiopia, its resolutions and decisions will henceforth be treated as the harmless gibberings of a paralytic."

Then we can take the view of Sir Samuel Hoare, Britain's Foreign Secretary, who says that the effect of a war between Italy and Ethiopia would, "in our view, be wholly bad." The term of "wholly bad" is somewhat anaemic; but as Britain's Foreign Minister adds—"whether such a short war, whether the victor be Italy or Ethiopia, the effect will be harmful beyond exaggeration to the League and to all the League stands for, the attempt we have made in the post-war world to substitute peaceful settlement for the arbitrament of the sword would have been frustrated—the small and weak countries of the world will see that protection upon which they have been depending gravely endangered."

"The facts that have been laboriously concluded for the greater security of Europe will seem little more than scraps of paper. That is why we shall strive to our utmost to keep the League in being."

Remarks which may be added to the foregoing are from the pen of Mr. W. N. Ewer, foreign affairs expert of The London Daily Herald. He says in a recent article in part: "Break the Covenant of the League of Nations in the case of Abyssinia and the Covenant is dead. The law is dead. The League may continue, wretchedly, to exist as a 'machinery' for facilitating the means of international co-operation—as a sort of diplomatic stock exchange—but it vanishes as an upholder of the law and as a means of ensuring peace."

"This is the issue that the next few weeks are going definitely to decide one way or another."

"You cannot have it both ways. You cannot have a League which will protect Austria but will not protect Abyssinia. You cannot have a League which will restrain Germany but will not restrain Italy."

"You can have a League, or no League. You cannot have half a League. You can have the law, or you can have anarchy. There is no half-way house."

On top of all this, Sir Norman Angell—the author of "The Great Illusion," that famous work published before the war which informed the world that it might well be possible for a nation or a collection of nations to win a war from the military standpoint yet lose it economically—says to Great Britain that it could put a stop to the fear of war between Italy and Ethiopia by closing the Suez Canal to the passage of Italian troops and supplies.

If Great Britain is so concerned about preserving peace between these two countries, how comes it that she does not "take a chance" and "fire the shot" which would bring Mussolini out into the open?

GOLD AND TRADE

THE MYSTERIES OF INTERNATIONAL finance are much too much for practically all of us. And here is just another of the paradoxes that make it so. We think of gold as good, something to be desired. Yet, for example, United States financiers are actually worried because gold continues to pour into the neighboring republic.

During the last six months, the total of gold brought into the country exceeded the amount sent out by $804,163,000. That is equal to 85 per cent of all the new gold produced in the world in 1934.

Without going into technical details, this much is evident to anyone: Such a flood of gold going into a country means that trade relations between the world's countries are still in a very unbalanced state; what goes into the United States, of course, is being sent out of other countries.

The working of the gold standard, or any international standard yet devised, implies that all countries must have a workable amount of the precious metal used, so that exchange may take place. It is like a poker game. Every player must have some chips if the game is to go on. But as the stack of golden chips rises before our neighbor, the other players have fewer and fewer. That, however, is where the likeness to a poker game ends.

In a real poker game, when a man wins all the chips he quits and goes home. In the international game, if one country gets all the chips, it has no home to which to go, for gold has no value in itself. It is only as a medium of exchange that it has value. And if you have it all, nobody can exchange with you. Says one United States financial commentator:

"Soon, despite rising government debt, it appears that we will actually be faced with the problem of getting rid of gold, of devising some means whereby the other players will get part of our stack of chips so the game can be kept going."

ONE-MAN SYNTHETIC POLICIES

PREMIER BENNETT WITH HIS "Reform of Capitalism" policy and Mr. Stevens with his "Reconstruction Policy" are being credited with the introduction in the Federal campaign now under way of an innovation in Canadian politics. The phenomenon is described in the east as "the one-man, exploding-like-a-bomb" type of policy.

Mr. Mackenzie King in one of his recent radio addresses referred to its characteristics, and Toronto Saturday Night has deftly projected the idea to contrast the techniques of the leading parties. Against the preceding speeches of Mr. Bennett and Mr. Stevens, it finds Mr. King's three addresses "were not merely an exhibition of the growth-processes of the Liberal party; they were also a strong plea for the whole principle of growing like a tree in party politics, as against the principle of exploding like a bomb."

Mr. King, says Saturday Night, "is incapable of exploding like a bomb. In the art of producing loud and sudden noises he is simply not in it with either the present Conservative leader or the Reconstruction leader who was once a Conservative"—and, of course, still is. However, outdone in this respect—or, recalling Mr. Bennett's terminology of five years ago, should we say "out-blasted"?—Mr. King has made successful use of the point that the exploding kind of policy has a relatively poor chance of getting itself carried out as "by its very nature it has to be the work of one man, or at most of a very small group."

Such a policy has been Mr. Bennett's "Reform of Capitalism" and so is Mr. Stevens' "Reconstruction policy." From the spasmodic nature of the support it has evoked across the country, it would seem that the latter has not much chance of being carried into effect; the former, well illustrating Mr. Mackenzie King's point, had a chance through a whole session of Parliament, but made singularly little progress.

These synthetic policies come from leaders who produce "a whole new structure of selected planks out of their inner consciousness and insist that their followers stand upon them." How different a structure each in architecture and engineering from that of the traditional National Policy of the Conservative Party, built up over years even before Sir John A. Macdonald associated himself with it! Gradual formulation with contributions from many minds has similarly been the history of Liberal policy. But these new "exploding-like-a-bomb" policies come, with their startling suddenness, as revelation from political Jehovahs.

Revelation like this may work in the field of religion. But Mr. King believes one-man revelation in the field of politics has little chance of being carried into effect in Canada. First, because Canada is still not a Mussolinized Italy or a Hitlerized Germany; second, because a one-man policy, although not necessarily bad in itself, is likely to lack vigorous and consistent support, to be denied any sustained or wide co-operation. We have as an instance of the difficulties before one-man policies at Ottawa, the mangling of Mr. Bennett's measures at the skilful hands of Senator Meighen and other of his own supporters during the last session of Parliament.

THE LOW-CUT GOWN

Miss Genevieve Gray had a back to display, And she wanted the people to know it. So she searched through the town for the kind of a gown That would most advantageously show it.

Now, when first she appeared, eyes were raised and throats cleared And somebody sneered: "What a fat thing!" And another dame said: "I would not be found dead In so vulgar a garment as that thing."

One was heard to observe: "It takes terrible nerve To dress in so startling a fashion; Surely sense she must lack, not to cover her back. She would much better look with a sash on."

When Miss Genevieve heard, every censoring word, She replied: "Those are things to be glad at. It is not at the gown or my nerve that they frown; It's my beautiful back they are mad at."

MARCHING PAST JOBS

The Saint John Telegraph Journal

The unfortunate feature of the case is that the longer people are idle the less inclination some of them will have to work at all if it can be evaded. There has been some gain in employment in the country at large and it evidently would be greater if more men were willing to take even seasonal employment on the farms. That marchers should deliberately march past opportunities to get work will not heighten public sympathy for them.

The most brilliant and fashionable event of the present season was the garden party and reception held yesterday afternoon at Government House by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia and Mrs. Patterson in honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

WARNING!

The Times urges its correspondents to restrict their contributions to 600 words. Henceforth it positively will not print communications which exceed that length.

These letters must be plainly written on one side of the paper only, and must be accompanied by the names and addresses of the writers, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith.

Letters will not be re-written for publication. If they are not legible an attempt will be made to read them.

Letters not used will not be returned to the writers. These rules, which henceforth will be carried out absolutely, are designed as much for the protection of our patient readers as for that of The Times.

CAUTION!

The Times will not assume responsibility for the return to the writers of articles sent for publication in the Correspondence Column or anywhere else in this newspaper, whether they are published or not, unless they have been specially solicited.

SECTION 98

To the Editor:—A soft answer does not, apparently, always turn away wrath! In replying gently and courteously to Mr. Bullock-Webster's original letter, Mr. Grievous Tuckwell presented in truly Christian fashion, and as all good C.C.F.'ers have been taught—the other cheek to the smiter.

Mr. Bullock-Webster promptly and derisively accepted the invitation and smote again. To-day's lengthy tirade against Communism in general and Evans in particular is the result. The inductive spirit in which the blow was delivered should do much to dispel any illusion Mr. Grievous Tuckwell may have of capitalism passing peacefully away, to make room for a more sane social order.

I do not think Mr. Webster should have any uneasy moments, with regard to the repeal of Section 98, which he, as a lawyer, naturally looks upon from an economic point of view. He will, I feel sure, find under a Liberal government, have many more opportunities to prosecute, or persecute under the act. An act which, by the way, is an absolute contradiction of what we have been taught to regard as British justice. Of the latter, Mr. Bullock-Webster seems to have little knowledge, just as, from his letter, we must assume that the canons of sportsmanship are entirely foreign to him. Evans at least has the courage of his convictions.

SUNSHINE CAMP

To the Editor:—The recent case of the mother who were deprived of a portion of their relief while visiting Sunshine Camp has been investigated by the Women's League for Social Justice, and it is apparent that discrimination was shown between certain groups of women who visited the camp this summer.

Of the first group of women who went out, only one experienced a relief cut, and as she was getting extra milk, she did not protest. Of the second group, five were deprived of a portion of their relief, ranging from $5 to $7.40, and wrote a protest to the newspaper. At the same time a delegation from the Women's League visited the Relief Office to interview Mr. Snowden, only to be told that he never received delegations. The mayor was then visited and the case put before him, and after a good deal of argument, he agreed to "see about it, and let us know." Since then we have heard nothing officially, but waited to see if the relief cuts would be restored. A recent visit to the families involved showed that this is not the case, and the question we wish to raise now is why such obvious discrimination should be shown between groups of destitute families—some to receive the benefits of a summer camp without a cut in their relief, and others to be deprived of what, to them, constitutes a large slice of their living wage.

Letters have appeared in the press from other small groups who appeared to be well satisfied with the conditions of the camp, and the benefits of the outing, etc., but may we point out that this is quite beside the mark, as the administration of the camp does not enter into the controversy and has not been attacked—we are dealing with relief cuts, and not with smoke-screens used to cloud the issues at stake.

Also, the signatories of those letters could not be subjected to relief cuts, as one was the recipient of provincial relief, and others a pensioner, a small storekeeper, and a worker from Sidney. Taking into consideration that the Sunshine Camp has been in operation for four years and that this is the first time that such discrimination has been shown by the city, we feel justified in bringing it to the notice of the public.

Churchill, Man., Aug. 19.—The stout steamship Nascope ploughed the cold, green waters of the most northerly steamship route in the world to-day on the second lap of her annual trip to eastern Arctic points.

WAR PLANES KEEP PEACE

Typical Case From Aden

Illustrates Moral Power of Air Control

Information which has just come to hand provides an excellent example of the quiet but effective working of "air control" in Arabia. Some months ago word reached government headquarters in the Aden Protectorate that a Yemeni murderer was being harbored and exploited by a tribesman of Belhan—Alovi Ahmed al Masabi—to advertise Alovi's grievances against the Sharif of Belhan and the Masabi Sheikh Ahmad Belf, who, though Alovi's chiefs, were unable to control him.

Alovi's defiant attitude attracted considerable support and in a short time he collected around him a potentially dangerous group of malcontents and disturbers of the peace. Early in March this year the position became serious enough for the Resident in Aden to warn Alovi that he must cease to shelter the murderer and come to terms with his chiefs within one month or be subjected to air action. Simultaneously the Sharif and the Sheikh were warned that they were expected to come to a friendly agreement with Alovi over distribution of stipends from the Residency, apparently the source of Alovi's grievances. Failing agreement, their privileges would be suspended.

Both warnings appear to have been heeded. The threat of air action convinced Alovi of the value of discretion. He complied in full with the Resident's terms and the murderer was expelled to the Yemen. And it is believed that Alovi and his chiefs now see eye to eye over the government stipends.

Such action, made possible only by the mobility and power of the airplane, is typical of the methods adopted to govern the protectorate and many other outlying regions under British control at the present day. Before the Royal Air Force took over police responsibilities, an incident of the kind just described might have led to serious trouble, even to a minor insurrection. To-day, the threat of attraction is usually enough to give the tribesman pause. No lives are lost, no treasure is expended and the peace remains undisturbed.

JAPANESE BUYING BRITISH PLANES

British transport airplanes have been chosen to operate new services between Japan and Manchuria. The main route planned for early exploitation with the new material links Tokyo with Hankow and Dairen; up to the present it has been worked only in the summer months.

The aircraft selected are Airspeed Envoy twin-engined low-wing monoplanes, each able to carry up to eight passengers and 240 pounds of personal luggage. Undercarriage struts and wheels are retracted in flight within the engine nacelles. Powered with two Siddeley or Wolseley motors, the craft cruises normally at 150 miles per hour and attains a top level speed of 175 miles per hour. It will fly, fully loaded, on the power of either engine alone. Range extends up to 700 miles according to the payload carried and the cruising speed.

Similar airplanes were recently chosen, after careful consideration of the claims of rival aircraft of foreign design and manufacture, to work the new and difficult route between Prague and Moscow.

"FLIRTATION WALK" IS WATERLOO FOR IMPETUOUS WEST POINTERS

Court Martial Faces Violators of Army Order Forbidding Ownership of "Horse, Dog, Moustache or Wife"

It was not the blackened eyes of former actress Harriet Hagman (above) that bothered the army court sitting in judgment on her husband, Lieut. Henry A. Sebastian (upper right)—but the question of whether they were married before Sebastian graduated from West Point. Disclosure of the secret marriage of Christian Cagle and Marion Halle (right) ended the army career of the academy's football star.

New York, Aug. 19.—The gallop has won many a cavalry attack, the charge has won many an infantry drive, but Flirtation Walk has been more devastating to the guileless, unprepared West Point cadets than either of them.

It is a long walk, a tree-lined walk, that romantic path along the Palisades where budding officers stroll with their girls.

Cupid occasionally starts an archery contest in competition with military manoeuvres. That was what happened in the case of Lieut. Henry A. Sebastian, former army football star, who has faced a court martial at Fort Hamilton, accused of having broken the 95th Article of War, which forbids a West Point cadet to have "a horse, a dog, a moustache or a wife."

If his superior officers have found him guilty (the verdict of the military court is still a secret), he may either be stripped of his commission or lowered several degrees on the promotion list.

CAGLE SETS PRECEDENT
Lieut. Sebastian's case equals in interest that of the famous Christian Cagle, football idol of West Point several years ago, who also broke the 95th commandment and was court-martialed as a result.

Two years ago West Point adopted a rule which requires a returning cadet to sign a register saying whether or not he has violated any academy rules while on leave. Sebastian always signed "no." He has graduated and received his second lieutenant's commission.

He married, too. It was quite all right. He was a graduate. The bride was Harriet Hagman, a former motion picture star and Polaris girl who had become a stage beauty on the recommendation of James Montgomery Flagg, the artist. The ceremony took place in a church at Poughkeepsie, June 12, 1934.

Last April there was an Army Day party at Governors Island. The Sebastians attended. According to Mrs. Sebastian, her husband was in a "soporific mood" when they went home, and two blackened eyes and assorted bruises were offered as testimony when she decided to talk. She also sued for separation, receiving $10 a week temporary alimony.

REVEALED EARLIER MARRIAGE

She explained that when her husband signed in as unmarried on September 30, 1933, and May 8, 1934, he wasn't speaking truthfully. She had married him in Borough Hall, Brooklyn, June 16, 1931.

The army, not interested in the blackened eyes but disturbed over the violation of the 95th Article of War, called a court martial. The story was repeated now Lieut. Sebastian, on leave to visit his family in Sherman, Texas, in June, 1931, met Miss Hagman in a New York speakeasy, where it was said he had met her previously, and married her. Alibis were used and a marriage contract was drawn up in Swedish to prevent detection.

CAGLE FORCED TO RESIGN

Lieut. Sebastian contended that he arrived at the opinion that his marriage was a sham, and that he was still a single man. He and the stage beauty had lived together just three days under their first marriage. Whether or not the army officials believe that the young lieutenant broke a commandment will determine his rating, or lack of it, in the army.

Sebastian's famous predecessor in extra-curricular matrimony, Christian Cagle, had been married two years before West Point discovered it. On August 25, 1928, he and Marion Munford Halle, an auburn-haired school teacher from New Roads, La., were married. At that time there was no register to sign, admitting or denying acquisitions of horses, dogs, moustaches or wives while on leave. Cagle became an army football idol. Professionals wanted him. The battling red head was captain of the 1929 team. His marriage was two years old when West Point discovered it. Cagle, eager to become a highly-paid football coach after graduation, was tied to the army, which demanded four years of officer'ship. So when word of his marriage leaked out, he did not deny it. The War Department requested his resignation and he gave it. This was in accordance with the army tradition.

Goldstream Park Proves Popular

Goldstream, Aug. 19.—Motorists from Calgary, Regina, Toronto, Vancouver, San Francisco, Milwaukee, Oregon and Seattle visited the "Cedar Grove" tearoom here during the last week. Complimentary remarks on the beauty of the city's new park were overheard on all sides, not only from visitors, but from Victoria and island residents as well.

LANGFORD

The annual flower show under the auspices of the Langford Women's Institute will be held on Tuesday, August 27, at 2:30 o'clock. All residents in the Esquimalt district may compete.

Miss D. Wilkie, R.N., who has been taking a summer course at the U.B.C., returned on Saturday to her home on Atkins Road to resume her duties with the Esquimalt rural nursing service.

Mrs. Gladys Staverman and Miss Constance Smith have left to attend a "G.G.F." camp in North Vancouver. Miss Staverman entertained a number of friends on Thursday afternoon at a beach party.

Mrs. D. B. F. Bullen and family who have been spending a month at Sassexon, Sooke, have returned to their home, "Marshwood," Langford.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL CLOSES

The first daily vacation Bible school to be held in the Fernwood district closed Friday morning. Sessions have been held every morning at the Emmanuel Baptist Church from 9 o'clock to 12 noon and during the morning period ninety-six children representing ten denominations have been cared for by a splendid staff of teachers. The morning sessions have consisted in worship, Bible study, learning hymns and songs, discussions on the theme of the school, which was "Building a Friendly City," play time and handicraft. Mrs. Maude Hammond was the general director of the school and assisting her in the junior department were Misses Rachel Hull, Alberta Robertson, Edna McPherson, G. Phillips, Nellie Cameron and Miss Street. The primary department was under the direction of Mrs. Violet Taylor, who was assisted by Misses Eleanor Anderson, Carol Boyer, D. Shewsbury, V. Blade and Evelyn Rhodes.

R. Aitken had charge of the manual training for the Miss D. G. Gagnon was the general secretary of the school and Ian Galliford was the organist.

Several parents and friends met Friday morning to witness the closing exercises, which consisted in a presentation of Bible dramas, recitations, songs and singing games. Certificates were presented to fifty-three of the children, after which there was a display of their handiwork.

At the close of the session the appreciation and thanks of the church and community was extended to Mrs. Hammond and the staff by Miss Lillian Parfitt and Don Smith.

WHISPERINGS SEEN ABSURD

Grapevine Campaign About Roosevelt's Health Belied By His Condition

By WILLIS THORNTON
Washington, Aug. 19.—The testimony of just one more newspaperman on the President's apparent physical fitness might not be worth much, except for whatever perspective comes from seeing him only at intervals instead of regularly, as do the other Washington correspondents.

But here it is, based on attending current White House news conferences after a week or more of absence from the Washington scene. The President looks well and fit. The outdoor tan he showed a year ago is somewhat faded, as the long session has kept him inside, too. There is still an air of cordiality, informality and frankness that is without precedent, though naturally some of the novelty has worn off for both the man behind the desk and the reporters in front of it.

But the presidential manner and the presidential manner maintains a freshness, a vigor, and an enthusiasm that is phenomenal after a long two-year grind and at the end of a dragged-out and disappointing session of Congress.

The scene of absurdity in the whispering campaign about the health of the President was reached in the claim that the Democrats started it all themselves just to create sympathy for the President.

Political slants, both causes and effects, have probably been exaggerated. People retail these ghastly stories because they get a cheap thrill out of talking or hearing them, not because they expect a definite political result.

Personal reaction: I wish I felt, as well as the President appears to feel, these hot days.

Three in Tie For Open Golf Crown

Calgary, Aug. 19.—Three players tied yesterday in the Calgary open golf championship with a 72-hole total of 292. Griff Owens, champion for the last two years, sank a fifteen-foot putt on the last green for a birdie three to come up on even terms with Billy Hudson, Philadelphia Arrow, and Bert Greer, 1932 titleholder. Greer led at the half-way mark, but slipped on the rain-soaked Regal course yesterday to send his total up to 292. The trio will play thirty-six holes next Sunday for the title.

ALBERTA LACROSSE

Calgary, Aug. 19.—Calgary Models had an overwhelming lead to-day in their two-game total-goal series with Medicine Hat for the Alberta lacrosse championship.

The second game will be played Labor Day, Sept. 2, at Medicine Hat.

Death Duties Yield 10 Per Cent of Budget

Britain's Rich Have Come to Accept Inheritance Taxes

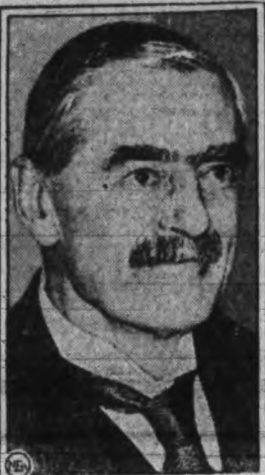

London, Aug. 19. — "The Right Honorable Emma Louisa, Lady Rothschild, of Tring Park, Hertfordshire, widow of the first Lord Rothschild, and who recently died at the age of ninety, left estate of the value of $5,738,820. Death duty of $2,326,565 has been paid."

This news item, indicating that nearly half the estate of a very rich old woman had been taken over by the treasury of Great Britain in the shape of death duties, was printed in all the London papers without comment. There were no excited editorials about how the rich are "soaked." There were no angry speeches about it in Parliament. There were no resolutions by Chambers of Commerce. There were no tirades by lawyers who were little servants of the rich. Everybody took it as a matter of course.

INSTITUTED IN 1894

For so long and in so many ways the British have been hit hard by various kinds of taxation when they are alive and even when they are dead, that they are used to it. The pocketbook nerve, usually so sensitive to blows, has become numb of caloused. If it aches, it no longer registers. It registers, it no longer produces shrieks in the victims. In a land where the amount of income taxation is far higher than in the United States and where the exemptions for family reasons and others are much smaller, nobody is springing much time pitying the sorrows of the rich. Many of them have even quit feeling sorry for themselves.

In 1894 Sir William Vernon Harcourt.

NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN
Chancellor of the Exchequer.

then Chancellor of the Exchequer in a Liberal cabinet, announced his intention of eking out the revenue by introducing a new form of taxation—death duties levied on estates as they passed from the hands of the dead testators to the heirs. The "soak-the-rich" cry, now being heard in the United States as a result of President Roosevelt's taxation proposals, was heard then throughout Britain. But Sir William pressed ahead with his bill and it became law.

And here is the piquant fact: This measure, designed merely to be a temporary one, has become a permanent feature of Britain's taxation history. Many of the men who criticized it when they were in opposition, themselves proposed it when they came into the government. Every cabinet since then has retained the principle and, in fact, has gone on increasing the tax. In fact, for some years it has produced about 10 per cent of the budget.

In 1924 the Chancellor of the Exchequer announced to Parliament that he proposed to name a commission to consider the various kinds of taxation and their effect on trade, industry, employment and national credit. When the commission finally produced its report in 1927, it said the death duty, as part of the tax system, was a valuable supplement to the income tax. The two forms of taxation taken together provided a fuller criterion of the ability to pay than income tax alone could furnish.

BETTER THAN INCOME TAX
As regards the wealth in classes, the report said the psychological effect of the death duty was possibly less adverse to saving than that of the income tax and super-tax. They also thought, on the whole, it must also be less adverse to enterprise. What it has meant to the British

Stories in STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

ONE OF THE WORLD'S SEVEN WONDERS

RATED AS one of the seven wonders of the world, the Great Pyramids and other tomb-monuments, headed by the Sphinx, still awe tourists from all parts of the world, in the ancient cemetery at Gizeh, Egypt. Several of Egypt's stamps illustrate these marvelous structures, which were built between 2900 and 2750 B.C.

The larger of the two great pyramids, the tomb of King Khufu, or Cheops, is a solid mass of masonry consisting of 2,300,000 blocks of limestone, each weighing an average of two and one-half tons. It took 100,000 men twenty years to build it.

The other pyramid is that of King Khafre, and before both stands the sphinx, believed to be the portrait of King Khafre, guarding the mighty cemetery of Gizeh. With the head of the king and the body of a lion, the Sphinx rises sixty-six feet high and stretches 187 feet along the ground.

Before Sphinx and pyramids stood many temples where food, drink, and clothing were placed to feed the dead kings. All were splendid structures that even to-day are marvels of construction.

Air Stewardess

By Vida Hurst

"Think you're going to like your new profession?" he demanded. Her green eyes flashed enthusiasm. "Oh, yes! I love it."

"When do you start working?" "To-morrow noon."

"Seaside?" "Seaside?" she nodded. A laughing group of pilots approached and he lowered his voice.

"How about going places with me to-night then?" he suggested. Well, why not, Irene asked herself, back at the hotel dressing for the evening. So long as she was in bed for a reasonable amount of rest, she probably wouldn't be able to sleep much anyway, it would relieve the nervous tension of thinking about the next day; and Tom Merritt was good looking enough to be a desirable escort for anyone.

The fact that she was never going to fall in love again was no reason for avoiding the companionship of men. On the contrary the less she cared the more amusing it would be to play with them. Take none of them seriously but flirt and run as if love were the delightful game they pretended it was. She would meet them now on her own level, giving blow for blow. Encouraging, evading, side-stepping, and in the end if any one was hurt it wouldn't be Irene Gardner.

Thus armed she dressed demurely in a dusty pink frock, buttoned a white coat over it and tilted a white hat becomingly above one eye.

"I look like a picture of winsome womanhood," she murmured ironically. Nevertheless, when the telephone rang she knew an instant of acute pain.

"If only it could be Bartlett! It was over a year since she had dated with another man."

"And now what's your idea of a perfect evening?" Tom asked as they drove away from the hotel.

"Why not show me a sample of yours?" "Dinner, some place where we can dance; the feature picture of a movie and maybe another dance or two before we come home."

"Sounds fine to me," she said appreciatively. He patted her hand.

"We are going to get along. I can see we have a great deal in common."

It had the makings of a perfect evening Irene reflected, tucked discreetly into her own corner. Spinning down the highway in a brand new car with one of God's gifts beside her and the moon like a huge theatrical prop suspended dramatically in a summer sky.

Presently she became conscious that Tom Merritt was staring her with his "dime." One which had without doubt been ecstatically received up and down the entire Pacific coast.

Three weeks ago, before she had become so completely a woman of the world, Irene herself would have felt flattered by it. But now, although she smiled encouragingly and led him on with sympathetic comments it was a game with her just as it was with him.

Tom was telling her all about his childhood. What a little brat he had been. The one person who could do anything with him was his beautiful young mother. After she died he had sort of "gone wild." His father didn't understand him and Tom had sneaked away from school to learn to fly.

He had a good many hours to his credit before he even dared to tell his father he wanted to be a pilot. And in all that time, through the battles which followed and the years before he was actually qualified for his present position, there had never been a girl who had really interested him.

"Until to-day when I saw you looking out the window."

"Really?" Irene murmured, but when he stopped the car on a deserted, tree-lined road she turned away from his embrace, saying sensibly, "Let's drive on, Tom. I'm hungry."

"Poiled," he grinned. "Never mind, Baby, I'll get you yet."

That he would do so Irene could see he never doubted during the entire evening. Self assurance was written in every line of his handsome face; back of every word of his bantering love making.

spend, when in spite of all he had said and done she continued to float remotely within his arms, he abandoned this method for one entirely different.

"If there's anything I like in a woman it is discrimination. Not permitting herself to be pawed over by every Tom, Dick and Harry she goes out with. Take yourself, for instance. I can see you've never been kissed."

"They were on their way to the theatre by this time."

"Oh, once or twice I have, that is to say now and then," she confessed, airily.

"No?" he cried in mock surprise. "I'd never have thought it. You are so shy and quiet."

Irene lifted amused, dark-lashed green eyes.

"Not really?" "Yes, you little hum! You're the heart of a hard-hearted devil and the face of an angel from heaven."

"How terribly interesting," she drawled.

It was fun, this game they were playing which lasted through the picture and was accompanied by his attempts to hold her hand.

But when they were on their way home the game abruptly ceased. Tom stopped the car, seized her in strong young arms and kissed her squarely on the mouth. She could not move, could not even cry out against the sudden, furious onslaught of his lips.

CHAPTER III

"Don't! Oh, don't!" Irene gasped when she was finally released.

"What's the matter?" "You have no right," she stormed. Then, struck by the futility of her own words, "All right! You've proved your point. Now take me home."

"Have you anything against me?" Tom demanded.

"Certainly not! It just happens that I dislike promiscuous petting."

"Who would have dreamed it!" he murmured, starting the car. "And here I've spent the whole evening thinking you were leading me on."

Well, hadn't she been? In a perfectly innocent way, of course. In the cool darkness her cheeks began to burn.

"Think nothing of it," he said, gayly honest for once. "Merely the salutation of a pilot to a charming little air hostess!"

"We'll let it go at that, anyway," Irene answered.

She found the publicity man for the air-line lobbying about the airport when she arrived there the following noon. Bill Naughton was a debonaire, attractive looking chap in his early thirties. Irene had been told by some one, she couldn't remember whom, that he was engaged to the first air hostess she had met, Virginia Cathcart.

"Very becoming," Bill approved, eyeing the green uniform on the slender girl. "How do you feel?"

"I'll bet you didn't have a bite of lunch."

"I didn't care for any."

"Come with me," he commanded, marching her towards the lunch room. "Never go without something in your tummy if it's only a glass of milk."

"A glass of milk it is then," she agreed, smiling back at him.

"To touch the rims of the innocuous glasses."

"A toast to your career in the air," he cried. "Wish I could use a picture of you instead of the one I'm waiting for."

Too Many Heiresses And Shortage Of "Dollar Princes" Serious Problem Of Heir-minded Girls In Society

By HELEN WORDEN
NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—This country is long on heiresses and short on detached millionaires. Jimmie Cromwell's recent marriage to Doris Duke, America's richest girl, has removed one more eligible boy from the thin ranks of dollar princes.

The old time "money marriages" holds with the majority of wealthy girls who have taken husbands within the past few years.

A careful check-up reveals only nine men qualified by right of fortune to marry the heirs of the following names: The old time "money marriages" holds with the majority of wealthy girls who have taken husbands within the past few years.

The boys are of varying ages. Alfred and George Vanderbilt, Michael Phipps and Jimmie and Woolworth Donahue are on the youthful side. Harvey Lader, William Rhinelander Stewart, Marshall Field and Charlie Dunlap might be classed as contemporaries of Mr. Cromwell.

THE GIRLS who get the Vanderbilt brothers will not find life dull. The spirit of adventure flows in Vanderbilt blood.

Alfred has gone in for racing. George prefers big game hunting. When the new million dollar Santa Anita track opened in California Alfred was on hand to cheer the cerise and white silks of the Vanderbilt stables. He had flown from Palm Beach for the show.

He likes lively parties, bright people and good-looking girls. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Emerson, turned over her Palm Beach home to him a couple of weeks ago when she and George sailed for Africa. A continuous house party chartered by various young married couples followed, some of the guests accompanying Alfred to California where Constance Bennett joined the group.

George has been on his way to organize another hunting expedition. Like his father, the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, George has a sense of the dramatic. There is a historic touch to his hobbies.

As to his fancy in girls, many think he is already spoken for. Lucille Parsons, daughter of Mrs. J. Lester Parsons of Llewellyn Park, N. J., is a member of his hunting party. Miss Parsons and Mr. Vanderbilt were twosome at Palm Beach a year ago. It was difficult to get a picture of one without the other.

The J. Lester Parsons are an old and wealthy New Jersey family, who belong to the same set in which Mr. and Mrs. Everett Colby, Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt's mother and father travel.

Both Alfred and George resemble their father. They have the long, slanting Vanderbilt eyes. Like him, they have inherited huge fortunes, not only from the Vanderbilt side, but also from their mother's father, Captain Isaac Emerson of Baltimore.

They could match dollar for dollar with any heiress in the country.

MICHAEL PHIPPS has money, plus charm. Take away every cent he had, and he would still be a heart-breaker. He is a high goal man on the polo field, he paints well pictures, and he has a Byronic profile. What more can you ask?

His father and mother are Mr. and Mrs. John Phipps. Still millions make him a ranking prince in the Pittsburgh-New York-Palm Beach crowd.

Equally charming, but of a decidedly different type are Jimmie and Woolworth Donahue, sons of Mrs. James P. Donahue and cousins of Barbara Hutton Midvale.

Jimmie is a good-time Charlie, one of those boys who can be called on at any time to do a stunt. His favorite hobby is tap-dancing. Every body likes Jimmie and he likes every body. He is friendly, sunny-tempered and handsome, with blonde hair, blue eyes and a baby-face stare. He takes the Woolworth five and ten cent stores very seriously and always makes a point of visiting one whenever he goes to a new town. He usually makes a small purchase. Lately, he has been doing some stage directing for Gilbert Miller. Jimmie has an eye on Broadway.

Woolworth Donahue is more society-minded. At one time his marriage to Dorothy Fell, daughter of Mrs. Ogden Mills, was a forgone conclusion. But that romance has been off and on the rocks so frequently that it looks as if it were past mending.

FOR THE heiress who hunts, and likes the simple life, Harvey Lader is the ideal husband. He owns a fine estate in Maryland, rides to the hounds three times a week and works at a year-round job of being country squire.

William Rhinelander Stewart is the banner-bearer of society. He has money, family and a zest for parties. His custom-built Rolls Royce is in front of every first night show. He keeps a ring-side table at every fashionable night club and he sits from Palm Beach to Newport, as the season dictates.

In spite of this hectic social existence, Mr. Stewart is a likeable, simple-speaking, direct young man, who manages to take time to join Vincent Astor on a deep-sea Galapagos Island fishing trip or a cruise off the Florida keys with President Roosevelt.

At various times he has been reported married to Olive Thomas, Barbara Bennett and Virginia Sherrell. But when he did pick a wife, the girl he chose was in his own class, a Biddle of Philadelphia. The romance was short-lived. Mr. Stewart has been detached for many years.

MARSHALL FIELD is still in the million dollar crowd, despite the sums of alimony he pays to his two former wives. If he marries again, and the chances are ten to one that he will, the next Mrs. Field will be mistress to the largest estate on Long Island.

So far the men I have mentioned are well-known candidates. The dark horse of my group is Charlie Dunlap, heir to the Berwind coal millions.

Mr. Dunlap is a bachelor and a charming gentleman, whose one hobby is fishing. When his uncle and aunt, old Mr. E. J. Berwind and Miss Julia Berwind die, he will inherit a huge white marble palace on fashionable Bellevue Avenue in Newport, and a great mansion in New York at Fifty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue as well as a fortune set at many millions.

WHILE the rule proves that like attracts like, and it takes money, there are exceptions.

Tommy Manville, whose millions are made in asbestos, marries Broadway blondes. Phil Plant has similar tastes.

John Nicholas Brown, the richest boy in the world, chose the daughter of a Baltimore clergyman for his wife, while his Newport neighbor, John Jacob Astor, carried out the love-in-a-cottage idyl by marrying Ellen Tuck French, a girl endowed with family rather than fortune.

FLAT AND FLATTERING

Sure to add glamour to dark sheers and prints for town is this moustroom hat of black novelty straw with a wreath of tiny flowers in tulle colors around the crown. A small stiff veil is fastened to the brim.

WHISTLER WINS VERSE AWARD

Canadian Press
London, Aug. 18.—Laurence Whistler, one of England's younger poets, who lives at Brunswick Square, London, is the winner of the gold medal presented by the King for the best volume of verse published in 1934.

The announcement was made by the poet Laureate, John Masefield, who handed the medal to Mr. Whistler at a meeting in the hall of the Royal Society of Literature. Mr. Whistler is a brother of Rex Whistler, the artist. It was his second volume of verse, entitled "Four Walls," for which the medal was awarded. The committee appointed by the King to select the best work of the year was comprised of Mr. Masefield (chairman), Laurence Binyon, Walter de la Mare, Professor Gilbert Murray and I. A. Richards of Oxford.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

I harp, borelessly, I feel sure, upon the necessity for readers to supplement their questions with such information as will help me to answer them. How much easier for a mother to tell me exactly what a baby is fed and how often, and thus put me in a better position to decide why such and such symptoms did develop and counsel accordingly?

Mrs. J. A. H. leaves me too much in the dark. "Our baby was started on a cow's milk formula, diluted. He has gained two pounds in two months. We changed to a patented food which was no better. Then we began to use goat's milk and he has improved but still cries a lot and is nervous. He never seems satisfied for longer than an hour at a time. He can only sleep any length of time on his stomach."

WEAK FORMULA?
"He suffers seemingly from gas. Should I boil his milk or merely bring it to a boil? He is fed every three hours. Did I do rightly to change to goat's milk?"

This last is impossible to answer except to say that unless your present formula of goat's milk is a good one you'll probably have the same difficulty as with the cow's milk. The chances are that you are giving too weak a formula—since the gain, the gas and the green stools are all indicative of underfeeding, and in such a case unless you improve upon the formula your baby will suffer as much from one milk as another. It isn't or probably wasn't the type of milk, but the contents of the formula.

GOAT'S MILK IS GOOD

Continue the goat's milk, since it is an excellent milk, and boil it three minutes. Feed only once in four hours, instead of every three. The regulation feeding schedule is 6-10-2 and once at night, waiting until the baby wakes after 8 p.m. and then giving this one feeding.

Our leaflet, "Sweet Milk Formula," can be had for a self-addressed and stamped envelope. Send the envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Elderd of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

Let the baby sleep on his stomach, it's a fine position. And be ready to recognize that lack of adequate gain is a sure indication of what is wrong than gas, green stools or baby's nervousness. You can see how much more easily I could tell you what might be wrong, had you told me the contents of the formula, rather than baby's symptoms alone.

To-morrow: "Mothers—Don't Tie Children to Your Apron Strings."

INDIAN CANNIBALS

St. Thomas, Ont., Aug. 19 (Canadian Press).—Investigations at the Southwold earthworks, site of an Indian fortified village three or four centuries ago, tend to strengthen the theory the band of neutral or Atti-wandaronk Indians practiced cannibalism, according to Dr. W. J. Win-tenberg, assistant archaeologist of the national museum of Canada. Dr. Wintenberg said a human radius, a bone in the forearm, had been uncovered on Saturday and this bore distinct evidence of burning at the stake. Other human bones discovered gave evidence of having been boiled.

Recent Weddings

MANNING—PENDRAY

Unusually lovely floral decorations featured the ceremony at the Metropolitan United Church on Saturday evening at 8.30 o'clock, when Rev. E. F. Church united in marriage Phyllis Audrey, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pendray, "Green Gables," Beach Drive, to Mr. Frederick A. Manning, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Summer flowers in colorful profusion formed an effective screen before the rostrum, three white bells being inset amidst the flowers. Sprays of the flowers, tied with white satin ribbons, marked the guest pews.

A large congregation was present as the attractive bride, escorted by her father, entered the church to the strains of a shower bouquet played by Mr. Edward Parsons.

Her beautiful model gown of lustre ivory satin was fashioned with a cowl neckline, and full dolman sleeves caught into a narrow wristband, while the very long skirt flared at the back into a long, graceful train. Her veil of filmy illusion fell from a tiara of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and swansons.

Mrs. Pendray received the guests in a chic French ensemble of flowered chiffon on a white background, with becoming picture hat of jade green, and was assisted by Mrs. Manning, who chose coral lace, with a brown velvet hat and brown accessories.

The young couple received the felicitations of their many friends in the drawing-room beneath an archway of white roses, stocks and trailing greenery to receive the good wishes of their friends, and later supper was served in the dining-room, where white roses and sweet peas made a fragrant decoration on the table.

Miss Josephine Rutherford of Bamfield, wearing a rose beige suit and accessories, with corsage bouquet of carried a shower bouquet of white roses and swansons.

Mr. John Comber of Bamfield was the groomsmen.

After the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the Empress Hotel, where the wedding breakfast was served in one of the private suites. The bride was accompanied by her bridesmaids and other early fall flowers.

Later Mr. and Mrs. Duggan left for the mainland for a honeymoon trip, and later will make their home at Bamfield.

CHARWOMAN SCARES YEGGS

New York, Aug. 19.—Gotham awoke to-day with a heroine. She's "Just Mary."

She saved two days' receipts for the Embassy newscast theatre and three yeggs flying so fast they left their tools.

She's fifty and she's grey and Irish, stooped from so many mornings of unsung toil with the shadowy and nameless brigade that scrubs up the city's buildings.

"My name's just Mary," she said when police tried to find out who she was.

"Just Mary" was the first of her craft to arrive this morning. She left herself in and saw two men in the orchestra.

"Working late, ain't cha?" said called cheerily. She didn't know they were yeggs.

They grabbed her. A third man joined them. They sat her down in one of the theatre's seats and told her to keep mouth shut if she valued her life.

But when it dawned on her the place was being robbed, she started screaming. The robbers became nervous and fled.

Island Liberal Clubs Hold Rally At Duncan

Policies Expressed in Series of Resolutions; Alan Chambers, Federal Candidate For Nanaimo Riding, Complimented on Organizing Young Men and Women

Special to The Times
Aug. 19.—Delegates of six Twentieth Century Liberal Clubs of Vancouver Island met at Duncan Saturday and placed on record an outline of the policies and aims of the clubs in a series of clear-cut resolutions covering a wide field.

Alan Chambers, federal Liberal candidate for Nanaimo, who launched the movement two years ago which has resulted in the organization of the clubs with a membership of 350 enthusiastic young men up to thirty-five years of age interested in public affairs, presided at the conference. L. Dorman, South Saanich, acted as secretary.

Chambers represented South Saanich, Nanaimo, Gulf Islands, Sidney and North Saanich, Victoria and Central Saanich.

Well-reasoned views were expressed before the resolutions adopted. Modification of Section 98, a general compulsory superannuation scheme for Canada, elimination of duplication in government services, tariff policy, unemployment, trade agreements and a referendum before a call for action for war in made were among the subjects touched on.

After the afternoon conference, which lasted three hours, a banquet was tendered by the Nanaimo Federal Liberal Association at the Commercial Hotel. Twentieth Century Liberal Club presidents at the banquet were C. Murray Reynolds, Nanaimo; P. B. Alexander, South Saanich; Stuart Hill, Sidney; Colin Mout, Gulf Islands; Lawrence Butler, Central Saanich; and W. P. Lawson, Victoria. A. P. Dawe was a guest.

FACTOR IN PUBLIC LIFE
Speakers welcomed the opportunity of the convention for members of the Twentieth Century Clubs to meet and hoped it would prove an annual event. All felt the Twentieth Century Clubs could be a big factor in bringing more young men and women into the political life of the Dominion.

Appreciation of the efforts of Mr. Chambers in organization of the clubs was voiced. W. P. Lawson, in extending a vote of thanks to the Nanaimo Liberal Association and Mr. Chambers expressed the view that Mr. Chambers as federal candidate for the riding typified the twentieth century spirit which Canada needed in its political life to-day.

Mr. Chambers reviewed the resolutions and complimented the clubs on their enthusiasm. The greatest problem before the people of Canada to-day was how it was going to absorb the young men and women of the country into the commercial and professional life of the Dominion.

Commenting on the resolution dealing with trade, Mr. Chambers felt too much stress could not be laid upon the importance of drastic tariff reform if the province of British Columbia was not only to remain a partner in confederation but to even exist.

The expression of opinion of liberal-minded young men and women of Vancouver Island at the convention was a sign of new confidence in his fight for a new order in Canadian politics. The view which brought a new vigor and enthusiasm into public life with a readiness to forget the failures of the past in plans for the future pervaded the well-known quotation, "The Twentieth Century is Canada's."

RESOLUTIONS
The resolutions adopted at the afternoon conference follow:

RESOLUTIONS
That the tariff policy of Canada be amended so as to grant greater facilities for mutual trade within the British Empire and generally by means of reciprocal agreements between Canada and other nations.

That in this national crisis the control of the credit of this nation should be in the hands of the nation, that the newly-established Central Bank of Canada shall be owned and controlled by the people and not as it is to-day by a privileged group.

That legislation be enacted whereby a referendum must first be taken in Canada before war, except for defensive purposes, may be declared.

That—(1) The present legislation known as the Anti-Combustible Act be fearlessly enforced by federal officers responsible directly to the House of Commons; (2) That legislation be enacted to curb the making of excess profits by companies incorporated in Canada, making provision that, upon a government valuation of the true investment of any incorporated company a fair profit up to a stipulated percentage on a three years average be allowed and that governmentally declared profits over this amount shall be deemed to be excess profits and shall be taxable as to the first 50 per cent a 50 per cent tax, and to the second 50 per cent a 100 per cent tax;

(3) An investment control office directly responsible to parliament be established to supervise the issue of securities by nationally incorporated companies, so as to prevent the exploitation of the general public through the sale of watered stock and worthless securities.

That the authorities jointly take steps to set up a governmentally assisted compulsory superannuation scheme whereby the policy of the retirement of older persons from the labor market on pension may be brought about.

That the federal government take action so as to render greater assistance to the province of British Columbia by the lowering of tariffs and by the closing of reciprocal trade agreements with other countries.

Whereas the Marketing Act legislation now being enforced in various schemes in Canada abrogates the free rights of the citizens to trade by conferring arbitrarily upon the board or commission the right to fix prices, to limit production and to impose penalties and fines for non-compliance.

Therefore be it resolved—That we do strongly protest against this delegation of the power of our representatives in free parliament assembled to boards and commissions enabled to act in this manner.

And further be it resolved—That we are strongly in favor of government assistance towards mutually co-operative marketing of primary products.

That a representative national commission be set up immediately to coordinate the work of, and co-operate with the provincial and municipal governments, so that the problem may be handled upon a national basis, that all the powers and resources of the nation may be marshaled to aid in the solution of this problem.

That a national commission representative of municipal, provincial and federal authorities involved and backed by the national credit of the Dominion be set up forthwith, whose object it shall be, by mutual agreement and understanding with their creditors, to refund the whole public debt of Canada at a rate of interest which will no longer be such a burden on the people.

Whereas, certain phases of Section 98 of the Criminal Code of Canada are contrary to the British principle of free speech and free association:

Therefore be it resolved—That the aforesaid portions of this section be repealed.

That upon the election of a new federal government a conference of representatives of each of the provinces be summoned immediately with a view to restating—(1) The responsibilities of the provincial governments, and (2) Their powers of taxation, in the light of modern conditions, in order that matters of national importance may be dealt with by a national policy to be agreed upon, having particular regard to uniformity of social legislation and thus by a greater co-ordination of provincial policy and by a reduction in the duplication of services, economies in governmental expenditures may be effected without impairing the services.

That all shipowners receiving grants of money from the public treasury of Canada be required to employ a specified percentage of white Canadian citizens on their ships and vessels.

That legislation, both federal and provincial, and municipal, be enacted so as to cause all candidates for public office to publish detailed accounts of receipts from all sources whatsoever and further that contravention of such legislation shall be punished by amendments to the Criminal Code.

That a contributory unemployment insurance scheme be set up by the proper authorities so as to afford a mutual protection to persons engaged in seasonal occupations.

Baby Restless Night and Day With Eczema. Cuticura Healed.

"My baby boy, aged three months, was very restless night and day with eczema under both his little ears. It was in a red rash and very itchy. He was very cross and would lie awake nights and keep me up. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After using, baby soon felt the soothing effect so I purchased a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment, which healed him. He is now eighteen months old and the eczema has never returned." (Signed) Mrs. Paul Wilke, Viscount, Saskatchewan.

Brunsdons and Poodle Dog Split Play-off Double Header

Each Takes Game As City Softball Series Is Opened

Tommy Johnston's Smart Hurling Feature of Cafe-men's Victory

TEAMS CLASH THIS EVENING

Brunsdon's Boys and the Poodle Dog Cafe, champions of the A and B city softball divisions, respectively, prepared for the third game of their best three-out-of-five series for the city title this evening on even terms as the result of a double header yesterday.

Brunsdon's took the first game, 9 to 6, and then dropped the second, 9 to 0, as Tommy Johnston pitched sparkling three-hit ball and was given airtight support. Both fixtures were played at Bullen Park, the latter before a huge crowd.

To-night the teams will clash again at upper Central Park, with A. F. Pick and Bob Whyte in charge. The game is scheduled to start at 6.10 o'clock. To-morrow evening they will play at the same time in the Athletic Park, with Bob Whyte and Joe Watt umpiring.

BIG FIFTH

A big fifth inning, when they scored seven runs after two men had been retired, gave Brunsdon's the opening game yesterday morning.

The Poodle Dog had set up a 2 to 1 lead up to that point with a pair of tallies in the second.

Brunsdon's brought in a run in the third and then hit their stride with the big fifth, to take a lead of 8 to 2. The Dog came back with a trio of markers in the sixth to cut the margin to 8 to 5. Brunsdon's tightened up for the rest of the game and allowed the Poodle Dog but one more tally in the ninth, offsetting it in their half of that frame with a run which brought the final score to 9 to 6.

Johnston allowed twelve hits as Brunsdon's boys piled up their score, while Palmer was nicked for ten by the cafe-men.

SECOND GAME

In the second game Johnston tightened up to turn in one of the smartest flinging performances of the season. He allowed only three hits during the game and his field nipped anything that looked dangerous to retire the Brunsdon outfit without a run.

Both teams struggled through two scoreless innings. In the third, the cafe-men bunched three hits for as many runs and then added another in the fourth to take a 4 to 0 lead. As they held Brunsdon's scoreless, the Poodle Dog boys scored again in the

Bahram Recovers From Coughing

London, Aug. 19.—Apparently fully recovered from his coughing fits, the Aga Khan's colt Bahram, winner of the Derby, was quoted at odds of 11 to 10 in today's cal-over of betting odds for the classic St. Leger, to be run next month.

Field trial remained second choice at 9 to 1, with Plassy and Sea Request 100 to 7. Hattran 100 to 6, Assignment 20 to 1, Solaray 22 to 1, and Fair Trial, Fairbairn and Buckleigh 25 to 1.

Fifth and sixth and after hanging up ciphers in the seventh and eighth, made the most of two hits and free passes to bring three runners home in the final frame to make the score 9 to 0.

Palmer and Warder pitched for Brunsdon's, allowing eleven hits between them.

The short score follows:
Poodle Dog Cafe.....003111003-9
Brunsdon's Boys.....000000000-0

Joe Watt and Ed. Cliff handled the first game, while A. F. Pick and E. Cliff were in charge of the second.

Instigator Wins Seattle Handicap

Lifts Longacres Feature By Good Margin Over Risky Miss; Third Place to Trombone; Muddy Track Forces Bonny Grafton Out of Race

Seattle, Aug. 19.—Rain knocked Longacres racing programme yesterday into a cocked hat, churning the course into a sloppy quagmire in which the second best crowd of the season saw Mrs. C. R. Irwin's Instigator prove the best horse in the mile and one-eighth of the Seattle Handicap.

The splendid son of Stimulus, under the guidance of Ralph Neves, defeated the Geeanee Stable's Risky Miss, Don Grant's Trombone and the only other starter, Mrs. Richard F. Carman's Coldwater.

BONNY GRAFTON OUT

The field of the Seattle Handicap lost some of its brilliance when Maj. Austin C. Taylor's Bonny Grafton, the queen of the Canadian turf, and the Geeanee's Stable's picture horse, Black Forest, were forced out due to prevailing track conditions.

Yet the huge throng came out, under fine weather conditions to see the race that was to give them a first-hand line on some of the eligibles for the $10,000 Longacres mile next Saturday.

What they saw in the Seattle Handicap further complicated the preface calculations for the greatest horse race ever put on by a Pacific Coast race track during the summer months.

Instigator made short work of Risky Miss and his rivals.

Ralph Neves was never in finer form than he was yesterday when he booted the apprentice Eugene Stalling.

It was over in the drive to the wire. Risky Miss had set the pace from the moment Starter Ed. Thomas sent them on their way. At the first turn the black daughter of Chance-Play in better behavior than usual, widened on Instigator, her closest rival, as Coldwater and Trombone trailed. Then the front pair drew out. Neves never allowing Risky Miss to be too far in the van.

At the half mile post, with Risky Miss a good four lengths in front, Neves gunned Instigator. It was then apparent that neither Trombone, which had been established the 19 to 10 favorite, nor Coldwater would get any part of the front running at the finish.

WINS EASILY

Instigator went to Risky Miss on the last turn as Neves picked out his path on the outside, where the going was just a bit better. Once at Risky Miss's saddle flit, it was over. The black mare was going in her game fashion and hard as little Merrill Wilber booted the Geeanee filly, still Instigator was too much horse and went on to score by open daylight.

Neves received a tremendous ovation when it was learned and announced that by riding Instigator he had once more broken a tie with Wayne D. Wright, riding in New York, for the year's saddle title.

On three successive days the two boys have deadlocked since Neves usurped Wright's leading position last Wednesday.

It was Neves 143rd victory, while Wright has but 142.

A few moments later Neves added No. 144 to his string and now gets a two-day well-deserved rest, not returning to the saddle until Wednesday. In the meantime Wright will be booting away in New York.

Government To Plan Road Work

Public Works Minister Will Tour B.C. Highway System to Lay Out Work For Next Year; Surfacing Scheme Meets With Approval, He Says

To inspect the hard-surfacing work that has already been done in this year's programme and also to survey the mileage which the government hopes to do next year, Hon. F. M. MacPherson, Minister of Public Works, will make a tour of the British Columbia road system about the end of the month, he said to-day.

Nearly half of the $1,000,000 surfacing work undertaken has been completed, said the minister, but already many compliments have been received by the department on the general improvement.

In touring the roads where surfacing is under way Mr. MacPherson will study the results of his policy of laying black-top on sections where roadbeds were prepared to receive it. So far, he said, this appears to have met with general approval, especially since it enabled the department to do substantial mileage with the comparatively small sum available.

To get the same mileage next year, he explained, a larger appropriation would be required because of the construction of roads and relocation which is necessary. The minister will look into this on his tour.

His present plans, which depend of course on funds, call for completion of surfacing on all the main routes within two or three years.

Mr. MacPherson said the programme undertaken this year would not be finished before the winter season sets in and will be resumed in the spring. By that time he hopes to have further appropriations which will make the job continuous.

INDIA ACT RETROGRADE

Professor Tells of Opposition to New "Self Government" Measure

"Already dissatisfaction has been expressed by the educated classes over the new act covering the government of India. The new act is a retrograde move which deprives us of several of our powers and virtually makes the viceroy an autocrat," stated Professor D. D. Kabadia of Poona, India, a Parsi educationist who was a guest to-day at the Empress Hotel.

Professor Kabadia is a retired member of the Indian Educational Service. In his native land he has been principal of the Deccan College at Poona, and of Karnatic College in Dharwar, and has taught physics and mathematics at the College of Science, Poona, and at another higher educational institution in Bombay.

While interested primarily in education, his mission among the young men of India has forced some of his attention to politics, he stated.

"The people of India have been kept waiting too long," he claimed. "They were promised a greater measure of freedom in 1930 and in 1935 they have not yet received it. What we have been promised is not what we want, since it restricts the people's power of electing their representatives to the legislative assembly and limits the general franchise to the election of provincial governing bodies."

"Indian princes have ruled India in the past and the people of India ruled themselves again. We do not wish to throw off the British yoke entirely. We want to retain British guidance and to profit by the Mother Country's experience, but we do wish to look after our own affairs," he said.

RIOT FOR BREAD
Riots and other mass troubles in India, he declared, were seldom caused over political or religious differences. They were merely the outgrowth of a hungry people's efforts to get bread. Prof. Kabadia declared. The masses were too poor and too ignorant to bother about politics, he declared.

Among the more educated classes a growing spirit of tolerance was being shown and members of some of the different castes were working together quite harmoniously. In time, he stated, those differences would be solved to a sufficient extent to permit co-operative work in government.

At present, Prof. Kabadia stated the educated classes were highly competent to look after the government of their own affairs, but wished to retain the guidance of Britain and to remain British subjects.

He saw only further trouble as the outcome of the new act allegedly aimed to give the people of India more self government.

Prof. Kabadia is travelling with his wife and son, J. O. Kabadia, a Cambridge graduate, on a trip for his own education only. He is not on any particular mission and will continue from Victoria to San Francisco.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD
Funeral services were held this afternoon for Ronald Berkeley White son of Mr. and Mrs. W. White, who died on Saturday, aged twenty-four years.

Interment was in the family plot at Colwood Burial Park. Rev. Canon F. A. P. Chadwick officiated.

Disintegration Dictators' Aim

Autocratic Rulers Point Against Democracy, Says Dr. L. H. Laing

Dictatorships to-day aim at the disintegration of democratic government and the best way to safeguard democracy is to protect parliamentary governments which are the heritage of the British Empire and United States, Dr. Lionel H. Laing, student of international affairs, told members of the Gyro Club at their luncheon in the Empress Hotel to-day. Dr. Laing spoke on "Dictatorship—The Challenge of Pragmatism in Politics."

Dr. Laing reviewed the rise of dictatorships, and in closing assured his audience he did not think there was likelihood of a dictatorship in United States as long as the freedom of the courts and press was maintained.

The speaker recalled that Plato and Aristotle had advocated, as the best form of government, one good man. The best form of dictatorship had been found in Rome, where a governing council appointed a dictator in time of crisis. Such an appointee was an ex-member of the council and one who was thoroughly acquainted with government affairs of the day.

DIFFERENT TYPES
These dictators differed widely from those of to-day who the speaker described as adventurers in politics. The old dictatorships rarely lasted more than six months, after which time the ruler was required to give an account of his rule to the people. From 500 to 22 B.C. there were eighty-eight such dictatorships, the speaker said.

These republican dictatorships, however, had fallen with the rise of Caesar and the subsequent accession of Augustus who had advocated absolute rule and permanently for the dictator.

Since the World War there had been a new form of dictatorship, the speaker continued. Dictatorship now was synonymous with absolute rule and autocracy and was the phenomena of a highly unstable condition. It flourished best in circles which were uninformed on parliamentary procedure and consequently were opposed by the intellectual.

Hitler, the speaker said, contended the new form of constitution was that which raised the best brains of the community to leadership and this line of thought had found a big field for development in post-war days.

LEADERSHIP WELCOMED
In Europe there had been general disorder with strikes and unrest, a condition which welcomed the reaction to the discipline of a despot. Post-war Germany suffered under many delusions and it was easy for Hitler to get support for the extreme nationalist movement he advocated.

Confusion reigned and Hitler had been supported by the small shopkeeper and the small business man who was educated under the anarchy to follow and not to lead. Hitler offered them escape from the harsh realities of the present to the promised ordered future. This, combined with "Germanic spirit," the Germanization of the world, had provided him with the necessary support.

Mussolini had pointed to the grandeur that was Rome's and the grandeur "that will be Rome's" to win his support. His symbol of power had been found in Fascism which stood for the unity of the state.

CHEAP NATIONALISM

Discussing dictatorships generally, the speaker said these adventures broke the continuity of the law and received their support from groups favoring a condition of status quo. The French Revolution had taught liberty, equality and fraternity, and consequently the intellectuals opposed the dictatorial policies, which he described as cheap nationalism which rushed into such adventures such as the present.

In conclusion, the speaker urged support of political parties which were an essential part of democratic government and dwelt on the need for everyone to realize that he was part of the system and exercise his franchise.

President Len Woodhouse thanked the speaker.

IS LAID TO REST

In the presence of relatives and many friends, the funeral of Miss Madeline Marianne Lindsay-Dickson, who passed away on Thursday, took place Saturday afternoon. Canon F. A. P. Chadwick conducted the service, during which Mrs. S. M. Morton rendered the solo "Some Day We'll Understand," and the hymns "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Abide With Me" were sung. The casket was surrounded with many beautiful floral tributes which betokened the high esteem held for the deceased by her relatives and many friends. The following acted as pallbearers: L. Denton, D. Miller, D. T. Bale, D. Blakey, Phil. Simpson and Arthur Blaney. The remains were laid at rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

Theft of $15 from the Standard Steam Laundry office, Yates Street, over the week-end, was reported to city police this morning. The money was taken from the cash drawer in the safe, which police said was left open.

DECLARE WEEK BIG SUCCESS

Danae Captain Presents Momento to City; Mayor Expresses Thanks

After a farewell visit to H.M.S. Danae, before she steamed out of Esquimalt with her "paying off pennant" flying, the City Council to-day relegated Victoria's second Navy Week to the past, certain the event had merited the widespread preparations made for it. And as the ship steamed away, leaving a Canadian port for the last time, the city had a lasting memento of the Danae's visit here.

It was in the form of a model brass prison tower, centre-piece of the ship's coast of arms, around which the legend of the Danae revolves. "I regard Navy Week as a very, very successful celebration which will undoubtedly help to restore in the hearts of Victorians a desire to have Esquimalt re-established as a bigger naval base," Mayor Leeming commented at the close of the week's festivities to-day.

ENTHUSIASTIC OVER VISITS

"The officers of the ships were very enthusiastic over the reception they had received and over the marks of genuine affection and goodwill manifested everywhere. "I trust the City Council of Victoria, as the years roll by, will see that Navy Week is maintained on the high standard of entertainment and sports it attained this year," he added. "I also wish to express, on behalf of the City Council and the Navy Week committee, our very deep appreciation of the work of the naval veterans. They certainly have shown a desire to maintain the old traditions of that service with which they were formerly associated," the mayor stated.

Introduced last year as an experiment, Navy Week was felt to have justified the hopes of those who organized it, as the result of the popularity it attained this year.

BOON TO CITY
It was considered a great boon to the city from the point of view, not only of the entertainment of the citizens, but also as a drawing card for visitors and an asset to the merchants who reaped a very fair harvest as the result of the different festivities during the week.

Next year, the members of the present committee stated to-day, indications, pointed to an even larger event than that of 1935, with the different features being extended as far as possible.

The officers in command of the U.S.S. Salt Lake City and their aides bade farewell to friends in Victoria yesterday. The ship left Esquimalt at 8 o'clock this morning.

At a special ceremony in the mayor's office to-day Capt. C. H. Knox-Little, in command of the British ship, presented the miniature tower with an illuminated and framed copy of the "Legend of the Danae" to the city. The captain was accompanied by Commander A. R. Clancey and his aide, Lieut. J. O. C. Hayes.

PRESENTATION MADE
After expressing the appreciation for the ship's officers and men for the excellent treatment they had been accorded in the city and the genuine hospitality they had been shown by all with whom they came into contact, Capt. Knox-Little made the presentation.

The tower stands fourteen inches above a black base on which is etched "H.M.S. Danae, 1935." The framed legend which accompanied the splendid trophy read as follows:

LEGEND OF DANAÉ
"The father of Danae was a certain King of Argos, Acrisius by name, who ruled a province of ancient Greece. He was warned by an oracle that his daughter Danae would bear a son who would put him to death and rule in his stead. So in order to prevent this he caused a tower of brass to be built with no way of escape and in this he confined Danae."

"The beautiful and lonely Danae was visited by the god Zeus in the form of a shower of gold. He wooed her and a son was born called Perseus. When the king heard of this he was terrified and seized Danae and her little son, and cast them into the sea in a wooden chest. After many days at the mercy of the waves, they were washed up on the shores of an island near Athens, belonging to a King Polydectes, and there they lived in peace and security until Perseus became strong and brave."

FEATS OF PERSEUS
"But the king who had given them protection now became enamoured of Danae and sought to rid himself of Perseus by sending him on many dangerous missions, chief among which was to obtain the Gorgon's head."

"Perseus accomplished this task and returned with his mother to Acrisius, who, fearful of the oracle, fled to Thebes. But Perseus, following him, was present at some games given by the king there, and in showing his prowess at hurling the quoit threw one which by chance struck his grandfather, causing his death."

"Thus was the oracle fulfilled, but Danae and her son, ashamed to return to Argos, settled in Mides, where Perseus establish his kingdom."

SOME sentimental old bachelor or old maid must have dubbed the first year of marriage the honeymoon. Anyway, some amateur must have done it. No one with experience could have been guilty of such a misnomer, for every man and woman who have ever been through it know that it is a time of storm and strife in which the bride puts on her hat a hundred times to go back to Mother, and the bridegroom is perpetually wondering how he could have been sap enough to have ever let himself be dragged to the altar.

Hard as the honeymoon is on the young husband, it is harder still on the young wife. For he has not, for one thing, fallen so completely for all the hokey about marriage being a state of perpetual bliss as she has, and, for another thing, he has his work to take his mind off of his troubles. But she has nothing to do but pick away at her bargain and wonder whether or not she chooses him. The theme song of most brides during the honeymoon would be the old ditty: "I had a good home—or job—and I left it."

Of course, in time, most married couples do adjust themselves to each other and learn how to keep off of each other's toes and to gumshoe around the angles in each other's dispositions. They even find out that marriage has more compensations than drawbacks and is worth its price, but no one will deny that the art of living in reasonable peace with a husband and wife is an accomplishment that is acquired by means of many a hard knock and bruised place in one's feelings.

"It has taken us forty years to acquire this perfect understanding that you admire so much," said a happily married couple in one of Mr. Howell's novels. And probably it does take that long for the average man and woman to work out the jigsaw puzzle to which they are married.

Yet, paradoxically enough, it is during the first year of marriage that they most need the philosophy, the sense of values and the sense of humor that it takes them to their golden-wedding day to achieve.

Now, so far as the bride is concerned, there are four unsuspected perils for her in the honeymoon, and if she manages to get by these safely she is pretty sure to have her marriage end in the story-book fashion of "and they lived happily ever afterward."

The first of these is the inevitable disillusion. The headache that comes after the shock of courtship. The settling down to the business of real life. The shock of discovering that she is married to a mere man instead of a movie hero. The incense-burner turning into the critic on the hearth.

Thousands of brides had shed barrels of tears over the first ham-and-eggs kiss their husbands gave them as they sprinted away to catch the 7.48 train. Thousands of brides have sobbed their hearts out because their husbands quit talking babytalk to them and began to talk sense. Thousands of brides have alienated their husbands by making even just because they wanted to be petted and flattered into a good humor again. Many and many a bride salts down her first year of marriage in tears over fancied neglect that she laughs at later.

The next shadow on the honeymoon is Mother. All of her life the girl has regarded Mother as the fountain of wisdom. She has never disobeyed, the arbiter in every crisis. When she is married she is still more daughter than wife, and she does not even suspect that there is no other human being on earth of whom her husband is so jealous as he is of her mother, nor whose influence he so bitterly resents.

Probably about nine-tenths of the quarrels between young husbands and wives during the first year of marriage take place over the bride throwing Mother in the husband's teeth and telling him that Mother says we should do this, and Mother says we should do that. That is why statistics show that mothers-in-law are first aids to divorce.

The next danger the bride encounters during her honeymoon is the gas range with which she is generally totally unprepared to do battle. Why any girl is foolishly enough to get married without knowing how to cook passes comprehension, but they do. Probably not 75 per cent of the brides can make a decent cup of coffee, or connect a biscuit that is not a menace to life. They set their husbands down to meals that would poison an ostrich, and when the poor, hungry creatures growl over their food it starts one of those quarrels that ends a honeymoon with a bang. Probably nine men out of ten get their first distaste of marriage and see their wives as they are instead of through a veil of romance when they sample their brides' cooking.

And the final peril of the honeymoon consists in the young wife thinking of marriage as a sentimental adventure instead of a job that she has undertaken and that it is up to her to finish. When she makes up her mind to forget all about the love-dovey business and to put her heart and her head into helping a man make a success of life, she has set the pattern for happiness not only for her first year of marriage but for all that are to follow.

For marriage is a great game for a woman if she knows how to play it.

Uncle Wiggly's Tree Toad

By HOWARD E. GARIS

One day when Uncle Wiggly was hopping around in the woods near his summer cottage at Green Lake, the rabbit gentleman heard a sound which at first, he thought was somebody whistling.

"Perhaps it's the Bob Cat," thought Mr. Longears. "I must be careful." So he hopped on carefully again and then he heard a sound as if somebody were humming puffs of a song.

"That maybe the Fox," thought the rabbit gentleman. "I don't know. So he hopped on carefully again and then he heard a sound which was partly whistling and partly humming. The sound came from a tree and, all of a sudden Mr. Longears saw, sitting on one side of the tree, a tiny creature of a sort of greenish grey color.

"Hello, Mr. Tree Toad!" called the bumpy uncle. "I should have known it was you making the whistling, humming sound and then I wouldn't have been afraid."

"Of course," trilled the tree toad, for his voice or song is a sort of trill. "You needn't have been afraid of me. I am your friend."

"Thank you," said Uncle Wiggly, and away he hopped to his cottage, feeling happy because of the jolly, trilling song of the tree toad. But when the rabbit gentleman reached his cottage, he saw Baby Buntie and some of his little rabbit children sitting on the grass out in front looking sad and unhappy with frowns on their faces and without a single twinkle on the ends of their pink noses.

"What's the matter, my dears?" asked Uncle Wiggly.

"Nobody will play with us or make fun to amuse us," said Baby Buntie the orphan rabbit.

"Ho! Ho!" laughed Uncle Wiggly. "Why don't you amuse yourselves. We rabbits? Why must you have someone always to make fun for you?"

"We don't know what to do," said Tinker, a little boy bunny.

"Couldn't you do something to amuse us?" asked his brother Bunker.

"Just this once I will," said Uncle Wiggly. "There's just about time enough before supper for me to take you into the woods and show you a friend of mine. He's a very cute little chap who hums and whistles at the same time and also change his color."

"How can anybody change their color?" asked Tinker. "If you're a black rabbit you stay black, and if you're a white rabbit you stay white. Colors can't be changed."

"Come and see," invited Uncle Wiggly. He led the silly, little rabbit children to where the tree toad was humming and whistling his evening song. "I have brought some of my bunnies to see you," said Mr. Longears.

"Pleased to meet you," trilled the tree toad.

"Oh, isn't he cute," said Baby Buntie. "But I don't see him changing his color," said Tinker. "He's sort of grey, no, he's sort of green, I guess."

"Watch carefully," said Uncle Wiggly. The tree toad climbed to where the bark of the tree was dark brown. At once the skin of the tiny toad turned to a brownish hue so he looked like the bark. Then he cried to a place where the bark was yellow and the skin of the little chap turned that color. On white bark he

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

TUESDAY, AUGUST 20, 1935

Containing planetary aspects of good and ill are seen in the horoscope for today. Caution should rule, especially among artists.

All who call the seas should be fortunate to-day, when there will be much travel from European ports. The navy also should benefit.

As women are lucky to-day, they should devote their time to intimate work or whatever they consider most important. All who are in the artistic professions should profit in the coming autumn, when actresses, musicians and painters will be under good direction.

This is a lucky day for engagements to marry. Those who marry to-day should expect fair fortunes and harmonious marriages.

Marriage is to become more and more of a business as well as a love partnership, astrologers foretell, but this will diminish rather than increase the trend toward divorce.

London astrologers now draw lines of similarity between Japan to-day and Germany in 1914. They fear in the horoscope of the young emperor ultimate disasters to his dynasty and even personal danger to himself.

New groupings of world powers are indicated by the stars; they seem to fore-shadow strange and surprising alliances.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of much pleasure and gain through speculation. Contacts with persons in high positions is foreseen for many.

Children born on this day probably will be exact in mind and careful regarding details. Subjects of this sign work hard for success in life and in business.

Valentine Mott, surgeon, was born on this day, 1748. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Samuel L. Mitchell, physician and scientist, 1764.
